ATTANASIO BEGINS HIS 20TH SEASON AS BREWERS PRINCIPAL OWNER

BY DENNIS SELL

ATTANASIO BEGINS HIS 20TH SEASON AS BREWERS PRINCIPAL OWNER

20 YEARS AS PRINCIPAL OWNER

Baseball history might suggest that Mark Attanasio was born to be an owner of a Major League Baseball team. Why, you ask? Well, Attanasio was born on September 29, 1957, a significant date in baseball history. On that autumn Sunday, the final day of the season, the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers played their final game as representatives of New York City.

A crowd of 11,606 came to the Polo Grounds that day to see the Giants drop a 9-1 decision to the Pittsburgh Pirates. Fans stormed the field following the game with a group carrying a sign reading, STAY TEAM STAY. The Dodgers, who had played their final game at Brooklyn's Ebbets Field five days earlier, lost to the Phillies, 2-1, at Philadelphia's Connie Mack Stadium.

The 2024 season is the 20th in which the Attanasio family has owned the team. Attanasio purchased the Brewers from the Selig family in September 2004. Let's take a look at the team during the years of Attanasio's ownership.

Attendance

The Brewers have averaged 2,693,702 fans per season at American Family Field during his ownership. Milwaukee's annual totals consistently rank in the top half of the league, despite playing in the smallest market in baseball. Excluding the 2021 campaign, in which most teams limited capacity early in the season, Milwaukee has exceeded the two million mark every season. In three of those seasons, Brewers attendance has topped three million, once thought of as an impossibility in a market the size of Milwaukee, 2008, 2009, and 2011, the latter season setting a Milwaukee record of 3,071,373.

Win-Loss Record

The Brewers' 1,535 wins against 1,442 losses since 2005 equates to a .516 winning percentage. This ranks fourth among National League teams, behind only the Dodgers, Cardinals and Braves. In 12 of these 19 seasons, the Brewers have finished at or above the .500 mark. Milwaukee's .555 winning percentage since 2017 is the third highest in the National League, trailing only Los Angeles and Atlanta. The Brewers 96-67 mark in 2018 topped all other National League teams. The Brewers are one of only three teams to win at least 86 games in each of the past six full seasons, the others being the Dodgers and Astros.

Postseason Appearances

Under Attanasio's ownership, the Brewers have made the postseason seven times, including five times in the last seven years—2008, 2011, 2018, 2019, 2020, 2021 and 2023. In the two seasons in which they didn't advance to the postseason (2017 and 2022), Milwaukee missed both times by a single game. In 2011, the Brewers came within two games of advancing to the World Series. The Brew Crew missed the Fall Classic by only a single game in 2018.

Commitment to Winning

As evidence of his commitment to producing winning teams, Attanasio has approved the signing of prominent free agents. Aramis Ramirez, whom the Brewers signed in 2012, and Rhys Hoskins, who signed during the recent offseason, are two such examples. Milwaukee has also been very aggressive in the trade market, bringing in franchise cornerstones like Christian Yelich in 2018 and Willy Adames in 2021. Attanasio has also signed current players to long-term contracts in order to buy out years of free agency. For example, Ryan Braun signed a long-term contract following the 2009 season. In March 2020, Yelich was signed to a nine-year contract through the 2028 season with a mutual option for 2029. During the past offseason, Jackson Chourio, ranked as the number two overall prospect by MLB Pipeline, signed an eight-year contract with club options for 2032 and 2033. At $82 million, it represented the largest contract given out to a player who has not reached the Major Leagues, surpassing the contract given to Luis Robert Jr. of the Chicago White Sox in 2016. Freddy Peralta and Aaron Ashby were also signed to multi-year pacts in recent years.

Community Involvement

Attanasio formed the Milwaukee Brewers Community Foundation in 2009 as the official charitable arm of the Brewers. To get the foundation off to a flying start, Attansio made a personal donation of $1 million to the foundation in April 2010. Since its establishment, the foundation has donated nearly $55 million to Milwaukee and Wisconsin charitable organizations. Each year, the foundation gives grants to over 200 area charities. During his 20 years as principal owner of the team, Mark and his wife Debbie have generously donated to Milwaukee charitable and philanthropic groups, such as the United Way of Greater Milwaukee and Waukesha County and the Milwaukee Art Museum.

Renovation of Spring Training Facility

A $60-million renovation of the Brewers' spring training facility in Maryvale, Arizona began in February 2019 and was completed in early 2020. The renovation took more than 1,500 workers and 500,000 hours to complete. The project included the construction of a 106,000-square-foot clubhouse building with locker rooms and improved facilities for players, as well as new concessions, retail stores, seating and video boards to improve the fan experience. The complex has a new entry plaza, eight-lane batting tunnel, an agility field, new pitching and catching mounds and improvements to all seven playing fields.

New Dominican Republic Facility

The Brewers recently opened a new academy in the Dominican Republic to aid in the development of international prospects. The complex includes three full fields and a four-tunnel indoor batting facility. It is home to 22 dorms and nine staff rooms, capable of housing 124 people. There are two classrooms in the dorm so players can complete high school. With most international players signing at age 16 or 17, most have not graduated from high school when they become professional players.

HISTORY OF MILWAUKEE BREWERS OWNERSHIP

To demonstrate Milwaukee's love for baseball, the Milwaukee Brewers arranged an exhibition game between the Chicago White Sox and Minnesota Twins. Largely due to the sales efforts of a young Bud Selig, the July 24, 1967, contest drew an overflow crowd of 51,144, including some 4,500 who stood on the outfield cinder track as shown here.

The Milwaukee Brewers organization had its beginning in 1965 with the formation of Teams, Inc., whose goal was to obtain a Major League Baseball team for Milwaukee following the departure of the Braves to Atlanta. The group was formed by two Milwaukee businessmen. One was Allan H. "Bud" Selig, a 31-year-old automobile executive and passionate baseball fan. The other was Edmund Fitzgerald, the 38-year old president of Cutler-Hammer, a major Milwaukee manufacturer.

In contrast to Selig, who was largely unknown in the business community, Fitzgerald was well-recognized, having served on the boards of several major local companies, including the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company and First Wisconsin National Bank of Milwaukee. As the youngest chairman of the local United Way's annual fund drive, Fitzgerald knew where to locate the money needed to purchase a new baseball team.

In 1966, the group changed its name to Milwaukee Brewers Baseball Club, Inc. Selig, Fitzgerald, and eight other investors each pledged $200,000 toward the equity portion of the purchase price, for a total capitalization of $2 million. The amount was based on the $1,850,000 price paid by the backers of the New York Mets and Houston Colt 45's expansion franchises in 1962.

We're Big League Again! Court OKs Sale of Pilots

Team Plans to Fly Here on Sunday

It still wasn't official — not quite — but Milwaukee was back in the big leagues Wednesday, and less than a week away from its first game as an American League city.

Transformation of the Seattle Pilots into the Milwaukee Brewers became a reality Tuesday night in the Seattle court of Federal Bankruptcy Referee Sidney C. Volinn. Volinn gave the owners of the financially troubled, one year old club permission to sell it to Milwaukee Brewers, Inc. And Milwaukee's four year wait for a team to replace the departed Braves was over.

Or all but over.

Co-Defendant

That is the $82 million suit Washington and Seattle have filed against the American League and its member clubs for permitting the move. The Brewers presumably now will become a co-defendant in the suit, as a sort of unwelcome fringe benefit of their membership in the American League.

A further legal recourse, however, is available to Seattle and Washington. An appeal for judicial review can be filed within 10 days, and an expert here said such a move would have the effect of freezing Volinn's decision pending review by a Federal District Judge.

Dwyer had made Seattle's strongest point in the hearings before Volinn when he questioned the ability of the Pilots to declare bankruptcy. He said the American League constitution provided that the league should take over financially distressed teams, and that [illegible] fornia Angels in an afternoon game.

A press conference was planned for Wednesday afternoon, and Selig said: "I hope we can provide all ticket information before the day is over."

Volinn's order permitted sale of the club to the Brewers for $10.8 million, but the money will not go to the present owners — Max and Dewey Soriano of Seattle and William Daley of Cleveland. The sale price will be delivered to Volinn's court, by arrangements not yet made, and Volinn will then decide which of the team's several creditors gets how much money.

The team's corporate owner, Pacific Northwest Sports, Inc., reported debts of $8.13 million, and Volinn said: "It's obvious the club cannot pay its debts. The unique character of a major league baseball team has been considered, and its importance to the community has

Radio, TV Pacts

The team will retain all concession profits until attendance reaches 1 million, and will share receipts with the county on a sliding scale after that. The county will retain all parking revenues.

Radio and television contracts are being negotiated by Majestic Advertising Agency, Inc., and reportedly will bring the club $525,000 a year. Tentative plans call for radio broadcast of all games, and television of about 30 road games.

Season parking tickets — $100 for all events, including Brewer and Green Bay Packer games — went on sale at the Stadium Wednesday. Ushers already have been fitted for uniforms, and the county has already signed a contract for park maintenance.

Front Office to Move

Not an April Fools' Day joke! The April 1, 1970, banner headlines in both the morning Sentinel and afternoon Journal newspapers celebrated Milwaukee's return to Major League Baseball.

Bud Selig and Edmund Fitzgerald, the pair who organized the Milwaukee Brewers and were instrumental on baseball's return to the city, are shown here with Hall-of-Fame home run hitter Eddie Mathews and Judge Robert Cannon, former advisor to the Major League Baseball Players' Association in this 1968 picture. Left to right—Cannon, Fitzgerald, Mathews and Selig.

To demonstrate the city's love for baseball, the Brewers arranged a July 24, 1967 exhibition game between the White Sox and Twins. Largely due to Selig's salesmanship efforts, the game drew an all-time record Milwaukee sports crowd of 51,144, including 4,500 fans standing on the cinder track in the outfield. The Brewers arranged for the White Sox to play one game against each AL opponent in Milwaukee. The games averaged 29,366 and 18,019 in 1968 and 1969, respectively.

Although his monetary investment was modest, Selig worked tirelessly to obtain an expansion franchise, attending league meetings, talking with other owners, and promoting Milwaukee as a Major League city. Selig became the public spokesman for the organization. Unfortunately, the city was bypassed when the two Major Leagues each added two new teams—Kansas City and Seattle in the American League and Montreal and San Diego in the National League—to begin play in 1969.

The Seattle Pilots' franchise quickly ran into financial problems. Following the close of the 1969 season, the Pilots verbally agreed to sell the team to Milwaukee interests. The American League, however, wanted to keep the team in the Pacific Northwest. Various Seattle syndicates unsuccessfully tried to raise the money required to purchase and operate the Pilots but they failed. The league even loaned the team $650,000 but it was not enough. In late March, the team had only $91,000 in cash, while operating expenses totaled $12,500 per day.

On the evening of March 31, 1970, the Brewers were awarded the franchise in a Seattle bankruptcy court by a federal bankruptcy referee. The April 1, 1970 edition of the morning Milwaukee Sentinel proclaimed "Referee OKs Pilots Sale, Baseball To Return Here," while the evening Milwaukee Journal trumpeted "We're Big League Again! Court OKs Sale of Pilots."

HISTORY OF MILWAUKEE BREWERS OWNERSHIP

With Opening Day scheduled for Tuesday, April 7, less than a week away, Selig worked on an array of operational details, while Fitzgerald and team attorney Richard Cutler rounded up additional investors. To meet the $10.8 million purchase price, it was now necessary to raise an additional $5 million over and above the existing $2 million the 10 investors had agreed to invest.

In the end, Ralph Evinrude, principal owner of Evinrude Motors, became the largest stockholder. Evinrude contributed 22% of the equity. The funding gap was filled by loans for Northwestern Mutual and Sportservice, the octopus concessionaire which held concession rights at many Major League Baseball stadiums.

While most of the investors were from Milwaukee, there were three from Madison, three from La Crosse, and two from the Fox River Valley. The majority owner of the Seattle Pilots William Daley also invested in the team.

In the years that followed, Selig purchased substantial interests from the team's other investors or their estates, enabling Selig to eventually become the largest single owner. Selig and his family sold the franchise to Attanasio in September 2004.

PRESIDENT - BUSINESS OPERATIONS

RICK SCHLESINGER

Rick Schlesinger enters his 22nd season with the Brewers and sixth in his current position after being promoted on January 23, 2019. He has previously held roles with the organization as executive vice president of business operations (2003-10) and chief operating officer (2011-18).

Schlesinger oversees the organization's business operations, including finance, human resources, information technology, legal, sponsorships, marketing, ticketing, business analytics, broadcasting, communications, stadium operations and non-baseball special events.

In addition, he oversees American Family Fields of Phoenix (the team's Spring Training complex) and the business operations of the Carolina Mudcats, the organization's Low-A affiliate.

The Brewers have established records in nearly every aspect of the business during Schlesinger's tenure. Over 2.5 million fans have passed through the gates of American Family Field in 12 of the past 14 seasons (excluding the 2020 and 2021 restricted capacity seasons). In that time, the organization has built a focus on the fan experience, developed new and enhanced partnerships and completed several major development projects that benefit various stakeholders. Recent major investments in the fan experience at American Family Field include the Miller Lite Landing (2020), Cream City Cocktail Bar (2022), X-Golf (2022) and the J. Leinenkugel's Barrel Yard (2023).

In 2021, Schlesinger oversaw the transition of the name of the Brewers home ballpark to American Family Field under a new naming rights partnership with Wisconsin-based American Family Insurance. This marked just one of the many elements linked to the expanded partnership between the two iconic Wisconsin organizations.

Prior to joining the organization, Schlesinger spent five seasons (1998-2002) as vice president of business and legal affairs/assistant general manager for the Anaheim Angels. He previously worked for Walt Disney Pictures and Television in motion picture development and production (1993-1998) and at the Los Angeles law firm of Latham and Watkins (1986-1993).

A Phi Beta Kappa graduate from the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 1983, Schlesinger received his Juris Doctor from Harvard Law School (cum laude) in 1986. A native of Bayside, Wisconsin, he currently resides in Hartland, Wisconsin, with his wife, Kate. They have five children, Bradley, Sam, Caitlin, Molly and Mathieu.

MATT ARNOLD

Matt Arnold, 44, enters his ninth season with the Brewers, fourth as general manager and second leading the organization's baseball operations. He was named the 10th general manager in franchise history on November 19, 2020 and was promoted to head baseball operations on October 27, 2022. He originally joined the Brewers as vice president and assistant general manager on October 14, 2015.

In his eight years in the organization (2016-23), Arnold has helped Milwaukee to the third-best winning percentage in the National League (644-549, .539), five postseason berths (2018-21, 2023) and three National League Central Division titles (2018, 2021, 2023). The Brewers won 92 games last season, collecting their second Central Division title in the last three seasons, and the third division title with Arnold in charge.

Prior to joining the Brewers, Arnold spent nine seasons with the Tampa Bay Rays, assisting then Executive Vice President of Baseball Operations Andrew Friedman and President of Baseball Operations Matt Silverman with player acquisitions, contract negotiations and player evaluations at all levels. His responsibilities also included strategic planning, foreign and domestic special assignments and coordinating advance scouting for the postseason. Additionally, he worked to develop the process of integrating science, biomechanics and human movement analysis within all levels of baseball operations. During his time in Tampa Bay, the Rays won over 90 games in five of six years from 2008 to 2013 and qualified for the postseason four times (2008, 2010-11, 2013), including the team's first World Series appearance in 2008.

Arnold transitioned to Tampa Bay following the 2006 season as a professional scout after nearly five years in the Cincinnati Reds front office. During his tenure with the Rays, he was promoted to director of professional scouting in November 2009 and to director of player personnel in June 2015.

Arnold, who has 22 seasons of professional baseball experience, has also served roles with the Los Angeles Dodgers (2000), Texas Rangers (2002) and Cincinnati Reds (2003-06). In Cincinnati, Arnold served as assistant director of professional scouting with his duties including player analysis, financial planning and arbitration, and he was also involved in advance, amateur and professional scouting.

Originally from California, Arnold graduated from the University of California-Santa Barbara with a bachelor's degree in economics in 2001. He merited academic honors, including Sport Management Student of the Year.

2023 SEASON REVIEW

BY DENNIS SELL

The Milwaukee Brewers won the 2023 National League Central Division crown for the third time in the past five full seasons. Their 92-70 record was the fifth best in baseball, trailing only Atlanta (104-58), Baltimore (101-61), Los Angeles (100-62) and Tampa Bay (99-63). The Brew Crew's 92 wins represented their second 90-win season in the past three years. Since 2017, Milwaukee's 573 wins rank third in the National League and sixth in the Major Leagues. The Brewers qualified for postseason play for the fifth time in the last six seasons. The team made the postseason four consecutive years (2018-21) and missed the postseason by a single game in 2017 and 2022.

Although the season ended with a disappointing loss to Arizona in the playoffs, it was a memorable season for fans of the team . . . eight walk-off wins, the superb pitching of Corbin Burnes, Freddy Peralta, reliever extraordinaire Devin Williams, the offensive and defensive performance of catcher William Contreras, the spectacular debut of rookie Sal Frelick, to name just a few. Let's review some of the 2023 season's memorable moments.

MARCH/APRIL (18-10 RECORD)

The Brewers opened the season by winning six of their first seven games, including a three-game sweep over the New York Mets in the opening series at home. The Crew had another long winning streak, winning six of seven games later in the month. Milwaukee tied or led in the division for 21 days. Rowdy Tellez blasted eight round-trippers during the month, while Willy Adames and Brian Anderson each had five homers.

APRIL 3

With his parents in attendance, rookie infielder Brice Turang blasts a grand slam to lead the Brewers to a 10-0 win, thrilling an American Family Field Opening Day throng of 42,017.

APRIL 4

Anderson drives in six runs with a double and pair of home runs to lead the Brew Crew to its second straight shutout victory, 9-0.

APRIL 9

Adames and Christian Yelich collect three hits apiece in the Brewers' 6-1 win over St. Louis.

APRIL 14

Tellez wallops a pair of home runs and drives in four runs in an 11-2 win over the Padres in San Diego.

APRIL 5

Rookie outfielder Garrett Mitchell belts a ninth inning walk-off home run to give Milwaukee a 7-6 win over the Mets and a sweep of the three-game series.

APRIL 16

Wade Miley allows only four hits in seven scoreless innings in the Brew Crew's 1-0 win over San Diego.

APRIL 28

Tellez's two-out, eighth-inning RBI single lifts Milwaukee to a 2-1 win over the Angels at American Family Field.

MAY (11-16)

In its least successful month, Milwaukee opened May by losing its first five games and seven of its first nine. The Brewers played .500 ball during the remainder of the month. The highlight of May was winning two of the three games against the defending World Champion Houston Astros. The Brewers never led the division by more than two games nor trailed by more than 1.5 games during the month. Owen Miller put together a 13-game hitting streak in May, batting .363 (29-for-80) with a .995 OPS during that span.

MAY 8

Joey Wiemer doubles, homers and drives in four runs while Adames blasts a three-run homer to lead Milwaukee to a 9-3 home win over the Dodgers. Freddy Peralta allows three hits and a single run in winning his fourth game of the season.

MAY 12

Burnes allows two hits in six shutout innings to pick up his fourth win in the Brew Crew's 5-1 victory over Kansas City.

MAY 13

Wiemer delivers a walk-off sacrifice fly to score Anderson in a 4-3 win over Kansas City.

MAY 14

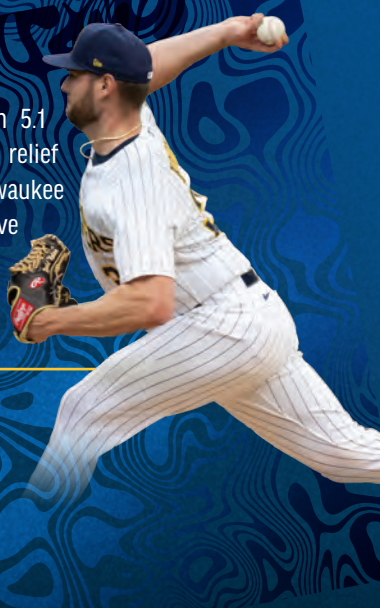
Yelich, Turang and Mike Brosseau hit home runs to lead Milwaukee to a 9-6 victory over the Royals.

MAY 16

Leading off the sixth inning, Anderson's home run breaks a 2-2 tie and gives the Brewers a 3-2 win at St. Louis.

MAY 23

Miller collects three hits, including a two-run home run as the Brewers, behind Colin Rea and four relievers, blank the Houston Astros at American Family Field.



MAY 24

Adrian Houser allows two hits in 5.1 innings of scoreless ball and four relief pitchers follow suit, as Milwaukee completes its second consecutive shutout over the Astros with a 4-0 victory. Adames, Miller and Anderson each hit home runs.

JUNE (14-13)

The Brewers spent 11 days in first place, never leading the division by more than 1.5 games or trailing the division leaders by more than 1.5 games. Highlights included winning three of four in Cincinnati early in the month, sweeping a three-game series from the Pirates in mid-month, and winning three of four over the Mets at month-end. Rookie centerfielder Wiemer belted five home runs and compiled a .848 OPS during the month. Williams notched seven saves.

JUNE 3

Rookie Blake Perkins blasts his first Major League home run, a grand slam, in the Brew Crew's 10-8 win over the Reds at Great American Ball Park.

JUNE 6

Wiemer lines a two-out, 10th inning, walk-off single to left to lift the Brewers over the Orioles, 4-3.

JUNE 4

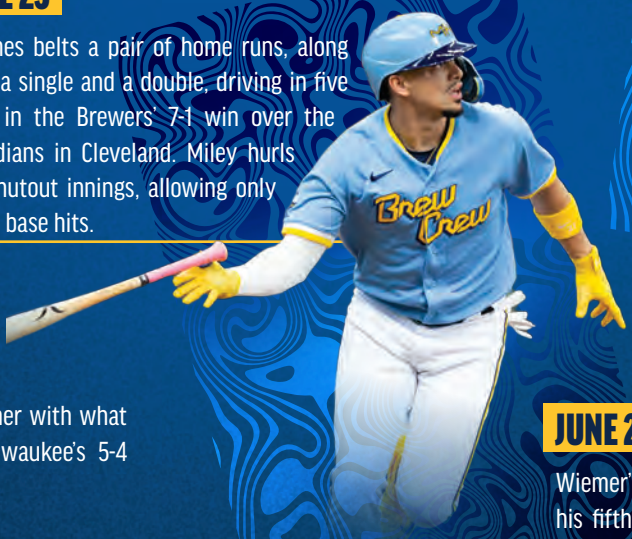
Andruw Monasterio, another rookie, hits a first inning three-run homer, his first in the majors, to lead Milwaukee to a 5-1 victory over Cincinnati.

JUNE 7

Wiemer collects four hits; a single, double, and a pair of home runs—and drives in five runs as Milwaukee routs Baltimore, 10-2. Burnes pitches shutout ball through eight innings, allowing only two hits.

JUNE 23

Adames belts a pair of home runs, along with a single and a double, driving in five runs in the Brewers' 7-1 win over the Guardians in Cleveland. Miley hurls six shutout innings, allowing only three base hits.



JUNE 25

Miller's 10th inning double plates Wiemer with what proves to be the winning run in Milwaukee's 5-4 victory over Cleveland.

JULY (14-11)

The highlight of the month was the Major League debut of rookie Sal Frelick on July 22nd vs. Atlanta at American Family Field. In his six July starts, Burnes compiled an outstanding 1.85 ERA, a spectacular 0.71 WHIP and a miniscule .29 walk-to-strikeout ratio. Contreras batted .365. Milwaukee's longest winning streak during the month was four games. The Brewers would win seven of their nine games against the Cincinnati Reds during the month. The Brewers were in first place during half the month by as much as two and a half games and never trailed by more than two games.

JULY 1

Burnes allows only a single base hit over seven innings of work in the Brewers' 11-8 win at Pittsburgh.

JULY 3

An eighth inning single by Adames and a sacrifice fly by Miller break a 6-6 tie and gives Milwaukee an 8-6 win over the Cubs at home.

JULY 6

Caratini's eighth-inning home run gives the Brewers a 6-5 win and a split of the four-game series against the Cubs. The series features three one-run games.

JULY 9

Jesse Winker's first-inning single gives the Brewers a 1-0 lead over the Reds. Thanks to six shutout innings by Miley and three more shutout frames by a trio of relievers, the margin holds up in a game played in 2:04.

JULY 14

Burnes allows only two hits over six innings and Caratini's sixth inning run-scoring single gives Milwaukee its second consecutive 1-0 win over Cincinnati.

AUGUST (17-9)

With a .654 winning percentage, August was the Brewers best month. After posting a mediocre 8-7 record during the first half of the month, Milwaukee won nine of its remaining 11 games. Milwaukee reached first place on August 3 following a 14-1 win over the Pirates and would remain there for the remainder of the season. Following their August 17 loss to Los Angeles, the Brewers would go on to win nine consecutive games. Peralta won all five of his decisions, posting a 2.10 ERA.

AUGUST 3

Rookies Frelick and Turang each hit home runs and drove in a combined eight runs in the Brewers' 14-1 win over Pittsburgh. The victory vaults the Brew Crew into first place.

AUGUST 5

Trailing the Pirates 2-1 entering the bottom of the ninth, Frelick's RBI single ties the game. In the 10th, Perkins' two-out single to right drives in the winning run in a 3-2 win.

AUGUST 7

Turang, Frelick and Taylor all blast home runs in a 12-1 win over Colorado.

AUGUST 11

Newly-acquired Mark Canha's run-scoring double in the top of the 10th inning gives the Brewers a 7-6 win over the White Sox.

AUGUST 12

Taylor's two-run double ties the game and a two-out go-ahead single by William Contreras keys a three-run 7th inning to give Milwaukee a 3-2 win over the White Sox.

AUGUST 13

Peralta allows four hits over six scoreless innings and newly-acquired Carlos Santana belts a three-run homer as Milwaukee sweeps the three-game series with a 7-3 victory.

AUGUST 20

Yelich and Taylor each collect two hits to lead the Brewers to a 6-2 win over Texas and a sweep of the three-game series over the eventual World Series winner.

AUGUST 23

Turang's infield single in the 10th inning scores Adames to give Milwaukee an 8-7 walk-off win over the Twins.

AUGUST 27

Trailing 4-2 entering the bottom half of the 6th inning, Tellez, Frelick and Canha each drive in a pair of runs to key a seven-run inning as the Brewers defeat the Padres, 10-6, and complete a sweep of the three-game weekend series.

AUGUST 28

First inning home runs by Yelich and Canha highlight a four-run inning as the Brewers hang a 6-2 defeat on the Cubs at Wrigley Field.

SEPTEMBER/OCTOBER (18-11)

At the beginning of the month, the Brewers led their division by three games. At season's end, they had won the NL Central Division by nine games. Beginning on August 18, the Brewers won 27 of their last 40 games, a .675 winning percentage, the best in the Major Leagues. Contreras ended the season (regular season and playoffs) with a 20-game hitting streak, during which time he batted .364 (27-for-76) and reached base in 39 of his last 40 games. Houser posted a 2.14 ERA during the month.

SEPTEMBER 1

Adames' three-run home run off Phillies' ace Zack Wheeler gives the Brewers a 3-1 lead. An eighth inning error by Phillies' third baseman Alec Bohm on Miller's ground ball brings home three runs and turns a 5-4 deficit into a 7-5 win.

SEPTEMBER 5

Brandon Woodruff allows only two hits over seven scoreless innings as the Brewers defeat the Pirates, 7-3.

SEPTEMBER 10

Burnes (8 innings), Devin Williams and Abner Uribe (1 inning each) combine for 10 hitless and scoreless innings against the Yankees at Yankee Stadium. Unfortunately, the Brewers are unable to score until the 11th frame and eventually drop a 13-inning 4-3 decision.

SEPTEMBER 11

Woodruff pitches the Brewers' first complete game since Houser (September 4, 2021), allowing six hits on 107 pitches, blanking Miami 12-0. Adames singles, doubles and triples while driving in four runs.

SEPTEMBER 15

Contreras continues his hot late-season hitting with a three-run home run while Carlos Santana clouts a pair of round-trippers in the Brewers' 5-3 win over Washington.

SEPTEMBER 16

Canha sends an American Family Field crowd of 36,212 into delirium as he breaks a 5-5 tie versus the Nats with a two-out grand slam in the eighth inning.

SEPTEMBER 19

Adames, Josh Donaldson, Taylor and Frelick hit back-to-back-to back-to back doubles to key a four-run fourth inning in the Brewers' 7-3 win at St. Louis. It is the first time in club history that four players hit consecutive doubles.

SEPTEMBER 21

Caratini hits a three-run homer and Miley hurls three-hit shutout ball over six innings as the Brew Crew blanks the Redbirds, 6-0.

SEPTEMBER 22

Yelich and Santana pace a 15-hit attack with three hits apiece while Yelich drives in five runs as Milwaukee bombards Miami, 16-1, and clinches a playoff berth. Tellez hurls the final inning, allowing a single hit and striking out a batter.

SEPTEMBER 28

Burnes and Julio Teheran each pitch four innings of shutout baseball while Ethan Small pitches the 9th inning to record his first Major League save in the Brewers' 3-0 win over St. Louis.

SEPTEMBER 29

Santana's 10th inning walk-off double lifts the Brewers to a 4-3 win over the Cubs and gives Hortonville, Wisconsin native Caleb Boushley his first Major League victory.

OCTOBER 1

Houser pitches five innings of scoreless baseball while striking out five in a 4-0 win over Chicago before 42,946. The three-game weekend series at American Family Field attracts 124,814 fans, bringing the final season home attendance total to 2,551,347.

Arizona went on to appear in the 2023 World Series after defeating the Brewers in the first round of the playoffs. Their appearance in the Fall Classic continued a strange trend in which the team that defeats the Brewers in the playoffs advances to or wins the World Series–1981 (Yankees), 1982 (Cardinals), 2008 (Phillies), 2011 (Cardinals), 2018 (Dodgers), 2019 (Nationals), 2020 (Dodgers) and 2021 (Braves).

NOT NEW TO THE CREW

By Adam McCalvy

It was obvious from the very start that the Pat Murphy era is going to be a little different.

After eight years as Brewers bench coach, Murphy was handed Milwaukee's managerial reins in an introductory press conference on November 16 at American Family Field. Or rather, it was a re-introductory press conference, since the 65-year-old Murphy has a long history in an organization hoping that this kind of continuity helps extend a run of regular-season success that has produced five postseason berths in the last six years.

Murphy and his new associate manager, former Brewers All-Star Rickie Weeks, let it fly. Murphy flashed his trademark humor on everything from the low quality of the ambulance that carried him to the hospital following a heart attack in 2020 to the high-quality work of big-league batboys. And Weeks got a bit carried away at the end of a fiery opening statement, accidentally exclaiming, "Let's [bleeping] go."

"I had to apologize to everyone for that," Weeks said later.

No apology was needed. Things should be a little different for the Brewers as they move on from the shock of the previous two weeks, as longtime manager Craig Counsell jumped to the Cubs. At the same time, so much remains the same. Continuity was a theme of the day, evidenced by the presence of nearly the entire staff of Major League coaches, who are all returning for 2024.

They flew in to see Murphy finally get the sort of long look as a Major League manager he has long coveted. He signed a three-year contract.

"There's just something about this city," said Murphy, who first visited in 1987 when he was recruiting Counsell to come to Notre Dame. "I seem to be connected with the Brewers and Milwaukee. And then I started thinking -- my kids look at what they call 'Waukee' as their home during the baseball season, and they know nothing different. It's just a beautiful thing.

"And I'm really grateful and thankful, and I can tell you that with these coaches out here, with Rickie, we're going to band together, and we'll have these guys ready to compete."

Murphy was flanked by his sons, 9-year-old Austin and 4-year-old Jaxon. His older son, Kai, couldn't attend because he is a Padres prospect and was away at strength camp. Murphy also has a daughter, Keli, who is married to Brewers special assistant (and former Pirates All-Star) Pedro Alvarez.

Weeks, too, will balance the rigors of the Majors with family life. He has a 6-year-old daughter and a 7-year-old son whom he took to last year's All-Star Game in Seattle.

"It's an honor. It really is an honor," Murphy said of the managerial role. "I understand how coveted these jobs are, and I've had my eyes wide open for the last eight years here. And it's a great challenge. If you feel someone has challenged you, there's that little bit of fear that grows inside of you, and then all of a sudden you say, 'Hey, let's do it. Let's do it.'"

Naming Weeks associate manager rather than the more standard bench coach, Murphy said, reflects "that he's going to have a huge role in molding and shaping the mindset of this group." Weeks, the former No. 2 overall Draft pick, played 11 of his 14 Major League seasons in Milwaukee.

"I'm ready to help assist wherever I need to be behind Murph," Weeks said. "And I'm just ready to work, period. There's a certain ballplayer that you want, there's a certain team that you want, there's a certain leadership that you want. And it's all right here, I think."

Even as the Brewers were still working to bring back Counsell, GM Matt Arnold was preparing for the possibility of needing a new manager. Once he decided on Murphy, Arnold had his own young son call Murphy to formally offer him the job.

"As we continued to assess the ingredients that we were hoping to get out of this role, we kept coming back to all of the qualities that Murph has," Arnold said. "As far as the continuity, the culture and winning, he has all those. That was our focus."

The vast majority of Murphy's managerial experience came as a head coach in college, mostly at Notre Dame and then a long run at Arizona State, where he took the Sun Devils to a national championship game in 1998. He then coached and managed in San Diego's Minor League system, including at Triple-A El Paso before the Padres dismissed Andy Green in 2015 and called up Murphy to the Majors to finish the season as interim skipper. The next year, Murphy moved to Milwaukee as bench coach.

"You don't necessarily win championships with resources, you win championships with people," Murphy said. "We want to get the players to play at the high end of their value. That creates a culture of responsibility. That creates a culture of, 'Hey, the expectation is to win.'

"That's what we've tried to do, and I think that's what we've had here, regardless of the roster turning over and regardless of moves or whatever."

PAT MURPHY WAS NAMED THE 20TH MANAGER IN FRANCHISE HISTORY ON NOVEMBER 15, 2023.

BREWERS AND RHYS HOSKINS AGREE TO TWO-YEAR DEAL

Rhys Hoskins suffered an ACL tear in spring training last year with the Phillies, which sidelined him for the entire 2023 season. In Milwaukee, he will have the opportunity to prove he is still a top-tier talent. Spanning his debut in August 2017 to the end of 2022, Hoskins ranked fourth in MLB in home runs (148), RBIs (405), and extra-base hits (304). He was a fixture in the heart of the Phillies lineup, as Philadelphia earned a trip to the World Series in 2022. Hoskins owns a career .846 OPS, highlighting his consistency since entering the league. He is particularly strong against lefties, with a .921 OPS against southpaws. This is crucial for a Brewers squad that ranked in the bottom half of the league against left-handers the last three seasons. The 31-year-old also displays excellent discipline, leading the league in walks with 116 during the 2019 season. A third baseman with Philadelphia, Hoskins will move to first base in 2024 with Milwaukee, allowing its excellent middle infield to continue flourishing defensively. Hoskins provides a massive boost to the Brewers' lineup.

February 1st:

CORBIN BURNES TRADE FOR INF JOEY ORTIZ AND LHP DL HALL

Joey Ortiz:

Joey Ortiz is the 63rd-ranked prospect on MLB Pipeline's Top 100 list. A 4th-round pick by the Orioles in 2019, Ortiz was dominant in college at New Mexico St, where he hit .422 his junior season. Since entering the minor leagues, he has progressed from a .241 average in High-A to a .321 average and 58 RBIs in 88 games last season with Triple-A Norfolk, as well as a .378 OBP. For his efforts last season, Ortiz was named a Baseball America Triple-A All-Star. Ortiz is a high-contact, low strikeout hitter. He strikes out in just 17% of plate appearances, while still displaying high exit velocities.

Ortiz' most impressive skill is arguably his defense. He is surehanded, and displays a very strong arm at the shortstop position. The 25-year-old also has experience playing second base at a high level, which provides versatility for the big-league club. Ortiz can slide in next to powerful shortstop Willy Adames and help strengthen Milwaukee's middle infield whenever he makes the permanent move to the majors.

DL Hall:

Hall was a first-round pick by the Baltimore Orioles out of high school in 2017. Hailing from Valdosta, GA, Hall has made 81 starts and 96 appearances on the mound since entering pro ball. The southpaw ranked in MLB Pipeline's Top 100 from 2019 to 2023. There are no questions about the pitching repertoire at his disposal. He has a high-90s fastball, a hard slider, and deceptive changeup, skills that are a premium from the left side. Struggles with command have held him back at times, but there remains tons of potential with Hall. He has a 3.49 career ERA in the minors, and recent stints with the Orioles in 2022 and 2023 show promising signs. Almost exclusively a starter in Triple-A, he has been used in the bullpen with the Orioles. He made 18 appearances in 2023 as Baltimore marched toward the division title, allowing only 7 ER in 19.1 IP, striking out 23 and walking just 5. Hall certainly earned some valuable high-leverage experience when he pitched in the ALDS last season vs. the Texas Rangers. He was excellent when his manager called his name, putting down 3.1 scoreless innings with just one hit allowed. Brewers fans can be excited to get their first look at this powerful left-hander.

OFFSEASON SUMMARY

February 7th:

SIGNED JAKOB JUNIS

Junis has been around pro ball for a long time, as he was drafted in 2011 by the Kansas City Royals. After reaching the majors in 2017, he spent five seasons with the Royals, where he started 89 games during that period. After a promising start to his career on the mound in 2017 and 2018, Junis struggled to find consistency with Kansas City in subsequent years, and signed with the San Francisco Giants in 2022. The move to the Giants signified a big rebound in his career, where he demonstrated versatility as a starter and reliever. In 2023, he transitioned almost exclusively to a relief role, arguably having the best season of his career. In 40 appearances, he had a 3.65 ERA, providing crucial long relief help for the Giants. His command is a strength, with just 21 walks surrendered in 86 IP. Junis will likely play a variety of roles for the Brewers this season.

OFFSEASON SUMMARY

February 21:

SIGNED GARY SÁNCHEZ

Just before spring training play began, the Brewers added to their depth behind the dish by bringing in Sánchez. Most known for his seven seasons with the New York Yankees, the powerful Sánchez adds some pop to Pat Murphy's offense, with 173 career home runs to his name. The Dominican has hit 20+ home runs in four seasons, and has reached the 30-homer mark twice. Since 2016, no catcher has hit more home runs than Sánchez. His ability to complement William Contreras, while also sliding into the designated hitter slot, is a major luxury for Milwaukee. Sánchez's presence will allow top catching prospect Jeferson Quero to develop further in the minors before being relied upon. This type of power from the catching position is not easy to find.

HATS OFF TO BREWERS' 2023 AWARD WINNERS

WILLIAM CONTRERAS, CORBIN BURNES, CHRISTIAN YELICH & BRYSE WILSON

By Dennis Sell

The Milwaukee chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America selected the following players for its 2023 season awards.

William Contreras

Most Valuable Player

Expectations were high for William Contreras when he was obtained from Atlanta in a three-way trade involving Oakland during the offseason. One could say that the Brewers' catcher easily exceeded expectations. Contreras finished the 2023 season with a 20-game hitting streak (including the pair of playoff games against Arizona), in which he batted .364 and reached base in 39 of his last 40 games. Playing in a career-high 141 games, Contreras led the Brewers with a .289 batting average, 156 hits, 38 doubles, 56 extra-base hits, 247 total bases and a .825 OPS. Among his 17 home runs was a 440-foot blast against Oakland on June 10 at American Family Field. He became the first Brewer since Norichika Aoki to have four or more hitting streaks of 10 or more games (11, 10, 14, 18).

Corbin Burnes

Pitcher of the Year

The Brewers' fourth-round selection in the 2016 draft, Corbin Burnes won this award for the third consecutive year, joining Teddy Higuera (1985-87) as the only pitcher to win the award for three straight seasons. Corbin posted a 10-8 record and a 3.38 ERA over 193.1 innings. He recorded 200 strikeouts over a team-leading 32 starts, 19 of which were quality starts. His 1.07 WHIP (walks + hits / innings pitched) led the NL and his .200 opponents' batting average and 6.6 hits per nine innings pitched ranked second. Winner of the 2021 NL Cy Young Award, Burnes' two most impressive 2023 starts were eight innings of three-hit shutout ball at Arizona on April 11 and his eight no-hit innings on September 10 at Yankee Stadium.

Bryse Wilson

Unsung Hero

Acquired from the Pittsburgh Pirates in January 2023, Bryse Wilson soon became a valuable member of the Brewers' relief corps. Oftentimes overshadowed by Devin Williams' 36 saves, outstanding set-up work by Joel Payamps and Elvis Peguero, and Hoby Milner's superb situational work, Wilson led the bullpen with 76.2 innings and a 2.58 ERA. He posted a perfect 6-0 record with three saves in 53 relief appearances and was effective in high leverage situations. Wilson held opposing batters to a .211 average while posting a 1.07 WHIP. He struck out 61 batters in his 76.2 innings.

Christian Yelich

Good Guy Award

Veteran Brewers outfielder Christian Yelich was the recipient of the 2023 Good Guy Award, which is presented to "the player who has the most outgoing, friendly presence in the clubhouse and interacts well with the media on a daily basis in a cooperative and pleasant manner." Yelich also had a good year with his bat, hitting .278 with 19 home runs, 76 RBI, a .818 OPS, and with his legs, stealing 28 bases in 31 attempts, a 90% success rate. In 2018 and 2019, Yelich compiled numbers that rank among the best in club history. Yelich was named the 2018 National League's Most Valuable Player (36 HR, .326 average, a 1.000 OPS) and followed this up with an even better season in 2019 when he finished second in the NL's MVP balloting (44 HR, .329 average, a 1.100 OPS).

Since coming to Milwaukee in a May 2021 trade with Tampa Bay, Willy Adames has become the heart and soul of the Brewers. His infectious enthusiasm has made him a favorite of his teammates and fans alike. Adames has hit 20-or-more home runs during each of his three seasons with the Brewers. He established a team record for most home runs by a shortstop with 31 round-trippers in 2022, surpassing Hall of Famer Robin Yount's 29 homers during the Brewers' World Series season of 1982. Defensively, Adames finished second only to the Cubs' Dansby Swanson on Outs Above Average at shortstop with 16 in 2023.

Aaron Ashby was the Brewers' fourth-round selection in the 2018 draft, after topping all Division 1 junior college pitchers that season with 156 strikeouts, an average of 18.8 strikeouts per nine innings. Ashby made his Major League debut in 2021. Appearing in 13 games, four as a starter, he compiled a 3-2 record with a 4.55 ERA and 39 strikeouts in 31.2 innings. Ashby missed all of the 2023 season, first by undergoing shoulder surgery, and then never fully regaining his velocity while rehabbing. The 25-year-old has shown promise when he's been on the field, despite being hindered by shoulder ailments. In 2022, he struck out 126 batters in 107.1 IP. The Brewers are hoping they can get a full season of Ashby in 2024.

In November, the Brewers acquired Bauers from the New York Yankees in exchange for outfielders Jace Avina and Brian Sanchez. Bauers showed off some power for the Bronx Bombers last season, hitting 12 home runs and 15 doubles as a backup who appeared in 84 games. Milwaukee is hopeful he can provide a power spark in the lineup when he gets opportunities.

Chourio signed with the Brewers out of Venezuela in 2021, and has made his way through Milwaukee's system extremely quickly. In 2023 with Double-A Biloxi, Chourio continued to build on his success, slugging 22 homers and stealing 44 bases. In accomplishing this feat, he became only the fifth 20-40 player in minor league history, and the first since Ronald Acuña Jr. in 2017. The 20-year-old signed an 8-year extension with Milwaukee in December, a record deal for a player who has not yet played in MLB. He will be making an impact on the big-league club very, very soon.

Contreras proved to be quite the pickup for Milwaukee last season, after arriving from Atlanta in a three-way trade. The catcher became a vital part of the Brewers' offense, batting .289 with 56 extra-base hits and a .825 OPS. Contreras finished the season on an absolute tear. He had a 20-game hitting streak at 2023's conclusion, and reached base in 39 of his last 40 games. His outstanding season earned him the Brewers Player of the Year award. After a breakout season, Contreras will be relied on to produce big numbers for Milwaukee this season.

Sal Frelick, the Brewers' first-round selection in the 2021 draft, had a sensational Major League debut on July 22, 2023, to help the Brewers defeat Atlanta. Frelick hit safely in his first three at-bats, including a run-scoring single to tie the game in the sixth. He then drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning. Frelick showed off great defense in the outfield in his first big-league stint, making multiple acrobatic catches in right field. Growing up in New England and attending Boston College, Sal was an avid fan of the Boston Red Sox, with second baseman Dustin Pedroia as his favorite player.

With the departure of Victor Caratini, the Brewers were in the market for a backup catcher and signed Haase to serve that role. The Brewers' catching unit last season ranked as one of the best in MLB. A former top-30 prospect, Haase hit 21 home runs in 2021, his best season offensively in the majors. Haase's career fielding percentage of .990 as a catcher makes him a tremendous asset defensively.

Acquired in the Corbin Burnes trade, Hall was a first round pick by the Baltimore Orioles out of high school in 2017. The southpaw ranked in MLB Pipeline's Top 100 from 2019 to 2023. Hall has a high 90s fastball, a hard slider, and deceptive changeup, skills that are a premium from the left side. Inconsistencies with command have held him back at times, but there remains tons of potential with Hall. He certainly earned some valuable high-leverage experience when he pitched in the ALDS last season vs. the Texas Rangers, putting together 3.1 scoreless innings with just one hit allowed.

Career	2427	392	588	1499	7	.242	148	405	388	15	.353	.492	.846

Rhys Hoskins suffered an ACL tear in spring training last year with the Phillies, which sidelined him for the entire 2023 season. In Milwaukee, he will have the opportunity to prove he is still a top-tier talent. Spanning his debut in August 2017 to the end of 2022, Hoskins ranked fourth in MLB in home runs (148), RBIs (405) and extra-base hits (304). He was a fixture in the heart of the Phillies lineup, as Philadelphia earned a trip to the World Series in 2022. Hoskins is particularly strong against lefties, with a .921 OPS against southpaws. This is crucial for a Brewers squad that ranked in the bottom half of the league against left-handers the last three seasons.

Reaching the majors in 2017, Junis spent five seasons with the Royals, where he started 89 games during that period. After a promising start to his career on the mound in 2017 and 2018, Junis struggled with Kansas City in subsequent years, and signed with the San Francisco Giants in 2022. In 2023, he transitioned almost exclusively to a relief role, where he had arguably the best season of his career. In 40 appearances, he had a 3.65 ERA, providing crucial long relief help for the Giants. Junis will likely play a variety of roles for the Brewers this season.

After being traded to the Brewers from the Minnesota Twins during last offseason, Megill made his presence felt in Milwaukee's bullpen last season. Megill allowed an earned run in just eight of his 33 appearances in 2023, putting together a 3.63 ERA. He only gave up two home runs all season, and struck out 52 batters in 34.2 IP, while walking just 12. A Milwaukee bullpen that is expected to be strong again this season is fortunate to have Megill to rely on in the middle innings.

Miley is the elder statesman of this Brewers group, beginning 2024 at the age of 37. This campaign will be his 14th as a big leaguer, and he will look to continue his success after a strong 2023 season. In 23 starts, he put together a 3.14 ERA, 1.14 WHIP and a .223 opposing average. It marked the third consecutive season that Miley had an ERA under 3.50, as he has orchestrated a resurgence in the later stages of his career. With the departure of Corbin Burnes, Miley will play an even larger role in the Brewers' rotation this season.

Traded from the Cleveland Guardians prior to the 2023 season, Miller played in 90 games for Milwaukee. Born in Mequon, Wisconsin, Miller lived out a childhood dream by becoming the 11th Wisconsin-born player to take the field for the Brewers. His 17 doubles ranked fifth on the team, despite far less playing time than those above him. Miller had an absolutely incredible month of May last season as he batted .363, with four home runs, 12 RBI and a .985 OPS in 23 games. Miller, who stole 13 bases in 15 attempts, demonstrated his defensive versatility by playing no less than five positions–first base, second base, third base, left field and right field.

Whenever the Brewers needed to get a left-handed batter out last season, Hoby Milner was called upon. In just about every case, Milner got the out. Appearing in 73 games, the southpaw didn't allow an earned run over his final 18 appearances and posted a 0.79 ERA over his final 52 games. Opponents hit only .145 against him. He will play a crucial role as a lefty reliever again in 2024, who Pat Murphy can turn to in difficult situations.

A first-round pick in 2020 out of UCLA, Mitchell made his first Opening Day roster in 2023. He almost immediately left the Brewers crowd in awe on April 5th, smashing a walk-off home run to complete a sweep of the New York Mets. This marked three home runs in two games, after he hit two against the same Mets team the day prior. Unfortunately, the fast start for Mitchell was cut short by a right shoulder injury suffered only days later, which sidelined him until September after undergoing surgery in May. Mitchell will look to stay healthy in 2024, and translate this hot start into a strong first full season in MLB.

Monasterio came out of nowhere last year as a 26-year-old rookie who had been in the minor leagues since 2016. After being called up in late May, Monasterio provided a largely unexpected boost offensively, particularly in July and early August. The Venezuelan hit .329 during the month of July (23-for-70), and recorded a .390 OBP. His hot bat cooled off somewhat towards the latter portion of the season, but his ability to play multiple infield positions was very valuable down the stretch. Monasterio will continue to provide crucial versatility in 2024.

Acquired in the Corbin Burnes trade from the Orioles, Ortiz is the 68th-ranked prospect in MLB Pipeline's Top 100. The infielder had an outstanding 2023 season with Triple-A Norfolk, hitting .321 with 58 RBIs and 43 extra-base hits. He was named a Baseball America Triple-A All-Star for his efforts, and earned a brief trip up to the majors late in the season. A natural shortstop, Ortiz is excellent defensively at multiple positions.

The Dominican right hander was one of the best relievers for the Brewers and in all of baseball last season. Payamps turned out to be one of the best pickups of last offseason. He was a workhorse for Milwaukee, pitching in 69 games. He recorded a 2.55 ERA in 70.2 IP, tallying 27 holds, which ranked 3rd in the National League and 8th in MLB. His WHIP of 1.05 was equally stellar, allowing just 17 free passes all season. Payamps has established himself as one of the premier back-end relievers in baseball, and an essential bullpen piece for the Brewers.

Peguero was involved in the Hunter Renfroe trade with the Angels last offseason, and soon became the most valuable asset from the deal for Milwaukee. He had by far the best season of his young career in 2023, appearing in 59 games and securing 21 holds, the second most of any Brewers reliever. Opponents hit just .222 against the Dominican, and in a season where he tallied over 60 innings, Peguero had a 3.38 ERA. Milwaukee is hoping that Peguero again plays a pivotal role in this outstanding bullpen.

Freddy Peralta led the 2023 Brewers' pitching staff with 12 wins, 210 strikeouts and a 3.89 rate of strikeouts to walks during his 30 starting assignments. Peralta was absolutely electric in his 13 second-half starts, with a 2.81 ERA and 0.88 WHIP and was second to only Atlanta's Spencer Strider in the majors in strikeouts. Peralta won all five of his August decisions last season, posting a 2.10 ERA. With the loss of fellow starting pitchers Corbin Burnes (traded to Baltimore) and Brandon Woodruff (injured), Peralta enters the 2024 campaign as the Brew Crew's number one starter.

Rea is another pitcher who is looking to earn a spot in the Brewers starting rotation this season. He split time between Milwaukee and Triple-A Nashville last season, starting 22 games with the big-league club. With the Brewers' staff struggling with injuries, Rea provided assistance, and in the process set career highs in innings (124.2) and strikeouts (110). An Achilles heel for a solid campaign was the home run ball. Rea allowed 23 home runs last season.

Ross has not pitched in the Major Leagues since 2021, after undergoing Tommy John surgery for the second time in his career. After appearing in the Giants' minor league system last season, Ross is looking to compete for a spot in the Brewers starting rotation. The 30-year-old spent the majority of his six seasons with the Washington Nationals as a starter, putting together a 4.26 career ERA, so he has the experience to compete for this spot. With the departure of Corbin Burnes and Brandon Woodruff's absence, Milwaukee's rotation has some openings, and Ross will look to capitalize.

Just before spring training play began, the Brewers added to their depth behind the dish by bringing in Sánchez. Most known for his seven seasons with the New York Yankees, the powerful Sánchez adds some pop to Pat Murphy's offense, with 173 career home runs to his name. Since 2016, no catcher has hit more home runs than Sánchez. His ability to complement William Contreras, while also sliding into the designated hitter slot, is a major luxury for Milwaukee.

A 2018 first-round pick and former top prospect, Turang took over the starting job at second base last season as a rookie. In the opening home series of the season, Turang launched a grand slam for his first career home run. Turang played in 137 games, and immediately displayed his defensive prowess. His 12 defensive runs saved were tied for the most of any National League second baseman. Turang did have his struggles at the plate at times, hitting .218 on the season, but when he reached base, he wreaked havoc. The 24-year-old stole 26 bases, second on the team behind Christian Yelich.

After putting together outstanding minor league numbers, Uribe got his first chance in the big leagues last July. It was a successful first stint for the Dominican, whose fastball consistently reads in the triple digits. Uribe was responsible for one of the fastest pitches in MLB last season. He allowed just 6 ER in 30.2 IP, striking out 39 batters and allowing a .154 batting average. Command is the biggest concern for the 23-year-old to work on, with 20 walks issued in those 30.2 IP.

Wiemer became the starting center fielder for the Brewers in his rookie season, playing 132 games, and he flashed the leather throughout the season. One highlight-reel moment came in July, when Wiemer robbed Reds phenom Elly De La Cruz of a home run with a leaping grab over the wall in center. The Cincinnati product showed off some power as well in 2023, with 13 home runs and 32 extra-base hits.

Williams has been one of, if not the best, relievers in all of baseball the last three seasons. In 61 appearances last year, Williams finished sixth among qualified relievers, and third among closers, with a 1.53 ERA. He allowed just 10 ER in 58.2 IP, with opponents hitting .129 against him. Williams' 36 saves ranked fifth in MLB, and he only failed to convert on four save opportunities. The closer's filthy changeup continues to baffle hitters, leading to stellar strikeout numbers, like 87 Ks in 58.2 IP last year. The dominant reliever earned his second career National League Reliever of the Year award in 2023 (also in 2020).

Acquired from the Pittsburgh Pirates in January 2023, Bryse Wilson soon became a valuable member of the Brewers' bullpen. Flying a bit under the radar, Wilson led the bullpen with 76.2 innings and a 2.58 ERA. Wilson held opposing hitters to a .211 average, and kept runners off the basepaths with a 1.07 WHIP. His efforts earned him the Unsung Hero Award for Milwaukee last season. In a strong bullpen, Wilson may not get his deserved praise, but he is a crucial part of the Brewers' success.

Last season, Yelich had a resurgent campaign, with 54 extra-base hits and a .370 OBP, which led the team. He also continued to display his excellent base running, stealing 28 bases in 31 attempts. Yelich led off games with home runs five times. Brewers fans still marvel at Christian Yelich's 2018 and 2019 seasons, in which he was named the National League's Most Valuable Player in 2018 and runner-up to Cody Bellinger in 2019. He won the NL's batting title during both seasons. In 2019, Christian compiled a .429 on-base percentage and a .671 slugging percentage for a superb 1.100 OPS and a 179 OPS+.

The Brewers acquired Capra off waivers from the Pittsburgh Pirates in November. He had 18 at-bats with the Pirates last season, going 3-for-18 (.167). Capra had a strong season in Triple-A, especially with Indianapolis, where he hit .329 in 49 games with 30 runs scored and a .411 OBP. The Brewers acquired Clarke in a trade with the Kansas City Royals in December. After the best season of his career in 2022, the five-year veteran had a tough time finding consistency last season, allowing the most runs in a season since his rookie year. At his best, Clarke is a very consistent strike-thrower, who doesn't allow free passes. In 2022, he allowed just 8 walks to 48 strikeouts in 49 IP.

After winning Breakout Player of the Year at the Arizona Fall League, where he hit .342 and had a 1.071 OPS, Dunn was traded to Milwaukee in November. He's now on the Brewers' 40-man roster, as he looks to garner further attention. He had 52 extra-base hits, including 21 home runs, with Double-A Reading in 2023, to go along with 16 stolen bases and a .396 OBP. The Brewers are hoping Dunn will continue to shine, and will soon play an important role with the big-league club.

Perkins split his time between Triple-A Nashville and Milwaukee during his rookie season, before an oblique strain sidelined him for over a month late in the season. On June 3, Perkins made his first career home run a memorable one, hitting a grand slam in a 10-8 win over the Reds. In 67 games, Perkins struggled to hit for average, but found other ways to get on base. Despite just a .217 batting average, he had an OBP of .325, which was aided by 23 walks in 143 at-bats.

WEEKS
23

When it comes to rewinding to his professional baseball baptism, Rickie Weeks Jr. has a clear recollection of his humble surroundings as a 20-year-old.

"I was sleeping on the floor of a three-story house in Beloit, Wisconsin with 10 other guys," said Weeks, the Milwaukee Brewers' first-round selection in 2003 and second overall pick in the MLB Draft. "That was my welcome to professional baseball moment. I bought myself a blowup mattress from Walmart and slept on the floor."

Fast forward two decades, as Weeks embarks on his latest chapter on the diamond as Milwaukee's Associate Manager, alongside new skipper Pat Murphy, to provide guidance, leadership and a compass in the Brewers' dugout.

"It's all about messaging," said Weeks. "Baseball is baseball and we've all done this for a long time, and we've all had our experiences. What Murph has done so far is the ability to delegate strengths of staff members to continue to communicate his message."

Weeks was an anchor at second base for the Brewers for eleven seasons, followed by stints with Seattle, Arizona and Tampa Bay, before a lingering ankle injury signaled it was time to pursue his next phase in life.

"I knew for a long time that when I was done, I wanted to take that route in life," said Weeks. "The first step for me was to talk to a bunch of veterans and take some time off and enjoy my family…to enjoy life after baseball. I kind of knew it was time, but I didn't know for sure. But I did know that it was time for me to go home, and once I got home, I understood what I wanted to do."

The next step had a few chapters in between. Weeks hit the books to earn his degree in Sports Management from the Florida International School of Business. Baseball couldn't have been a better teacher when it came to relating to the agenda in the classroom.

"Baseball helped me out in that regard," said Weeks. "The classes I was taking couldn't replicate what it's like to work on contractual negotiations or the bond in sports between a player and management. The biggest thing for me was to take that playing experience and use it to my advantage for my schooling."

"Now, it's vice versa," Weeks continued. "I'm using more of the knowledge and information I received at school in this new age of baseball."

Older (41) but certainly wiser, Weeks also stayed ahead of the curve so that once an administrative opportunity presented itself, he would be prepared. Weeks dialed in with the current generation of players taking the field.

"The way I go about talking to a player nowadays is different," explained Weeks. "This day and age of baseball, you really have to be in tune with what's also going on around the players themselves and not just their baseball experience. I need to understand what the players are going through outside of the game, and then tie that into baseball. That's my biggest challenge."

That doesn't mean that lessons learned by Weeks when he walked in their cleats, sleeping on floors with Snapper teammates, can't translate to a player today hoping to replicate the Rickie Weeks résumé.

"Never forget that the game is hard...I think guys tend to gravitate to coaching like that and that's what I'm trying to do," said Weeks. "In this role now, I'm trying to make sure that the message is clear, that we're on the same page. I want to deliver that same message that Murph is spreading throughout the organization."

The new Brewers manager made it clear at his introductory presser that having Weeks pacing the dugout stride for stride as his right-hand man was more than just having a trusted security blanket at the ready.

"Rickie coming here is going to be a major impact," said Murphy. "I think sometimes you can dissect titles in different ways, but he's going to have a huge role in molding and shaping the mindset of this group. That's why it demands a bigger leadership title."

Weeks is flattered, humbled and grateful for the backing and support of Murphy and the entire Brewers organization for believing that a shining piece of the franchise's past will be counted on to become a beacon that leads them into the future.

"Words are great, but actions mean more," said Weeks. "It's about me going out there fulfilling my duties and being able to assist wherever I can. I want to help guys get to a better place."

For Weeks, it's a full circle moment from highly drafted rookie prospect to critical cog in the Milwaukee management machine.

The Brewer Way? Weeks has lived it.

"We've been winning for a long time around here, and I think The Brewer Way is about winning," said Weeks. "We need to teach players how to win and the ability and attitude it takes to win. If I have to pinpoint The Brewer Way, it's to keep winning and extend Murph's message to all the guys about the winning ways."

In a past life, Weeks was measured by the statistics fans found on the back of his bubble gum card. Today, his daily checklist includes juggling the rigors and responsibilities within the Brewers clubhouse.

Check out the Rickie Weeks, Jr. business model on his LinkedIn page, where his personal mantra is also being imparted within the walls of American Family Field:

"The key to success is to focus on goals, not obstacles."

"My title is Associate Manager and right now I'm here to help the club in any way possible," added Weeks. "I've accepted this challenge and I'm ready to go."

Rickie Weeks is more than ready. He's even ready to take the reins from Pat Murphy, should an argument with an umpire lead to an early exit from a game.

"It's part of the game and it happens sometimes," laughed Weeks. "And who knows, I might get thrown out too!"

AMERICAN FAMILY FIELD

In November, the Wisconsin State Senate passed a bill to approve funding for renovations to American Family Field, ensuring that the Brewers will remain in Milwaukee until at least 2050. On December 5th, Wisconsin governor Tony Evers officially signed the legislation at American Family Field, with Brewers chairman and principal owner Mark Attanasio and Brewers founder Bud Selig standing alongside him.

"We now can all go to sleep tonight knowing the Brewers are going to be here for the next generation in a great, beautifully maintained ballpark that is worthy of fan support," Rick Schlesinger, Brewers president of business operations, said in a statement.

Many refurbishments will take place in the upcoming months and years at Milwaukee's beloved ballpark. First on the list includes the replacement of freezers and cooling infrastructure, as well as updates to broadcast equipment. The Brewers also plan to repair the glass doors in the outfield, and will make replacements to seats and concourses over time. In exciting news for fans, the franchise installed brand-new scoreboards, making the in-game experience even better at American Family Field.

One thing is for certain that is a relief to all Brewers fans: baseball is here to stay in Milwaukee.

TOP MINOR LEAGUE PROSPECTS

There is a lot to be excited about in the Brewers farm system. Five players currently rank in MLB Pipeline's Top 100, and some are soon to be arriving on the big stage. Some will join the team as soon as 2024. Let's talk a closer look at these young standouts.

Jackson Chourio (No. 2)

Chourio signed with the Brewers out of Venezuela in 2021, and has made his way through Milwaukee's system extremely quickly. At just 18 years old in 2022, he competed at three minor league levels in one season, putting together a .288/.342/.538 slash line with 20 home runs and 16 steals. In 2023 with Double-A Biloxi, Chourio continued to build on his success, slugging 22 homers and stealing 44 bases. In accomplishing this feat, he became only the fifth 20-40 player in minor league history, and the first since Ronald Acuña Jr. in 2017. He has power to all fields, with nine of his 22 home runs to right field.

The 20-year-old signed an 8-year extension with Milwaukee in December, a record deal for a player who has not yet played in MLB. Chourio has game-breaking speed, which translates not only to the basepaths, but ball tracking in center field as well. He will be making an impact on the big-league club very, very soon.

TOP MINOR LEAGUE PROSPECTS

Jacob Misiorowski (No. 33)

Misiorowski burst onto the scene at the JUCO level with Crowder College in 2022, when he struck out 136 batters over 15 starts, good for an absurd 16.1 K/9. Milwaukee took him in the second round in July of that same year. Another young Brewers prospect, just 21, Misiorowski immediately backed up his performance in Crowder during his first season in the farm system. He struck out 35% of batters he faced in Single-A and Double-A, ranked fifth-best in all of the minor leagues. At 6-foot-7, Misiorowski's large frame helps produce a fastball that topped 102 mph during the 2023 Futures Game, and this powerful pitch sits in the high 90s. Limiting walks is an area in need of growth for the right-hander, but with his tremendous rise in just one season, Misiorowski is well on his way to becoming a fixture in the Brewers rotation or in the back end of the bullpen in the coming years.

Jeferson Quero (No. 35)

Quero has become one of MLB's premier catching prospects since signing with the Brewers in 2019 out of Venezuela. He earned a spot on the 40-man roster this offseason for his efforts. With Double-A Biloxi, Quero established himself as one of the best defensive backstops in the minor leagues, winning the 2023 Rawlings Minor League Gold Glove Award. Quero threw out 34.6% of attempted basestealers last season, representing his preparation for the rapid increase in basestealing across the sport. The 21-year-old provides value with the bat, recording a .339 OBP last season to go along with 16 home runs. Quero will make the transition to Triple-A Nashville in 2024, and if he continues his success, Brewers fans may get a sneak peek of the talented catcher with the big club late in the season.

TOP MINOR LEAGUE PROSPECTS

Tyler Black (No. 46)

Following a stellar career at Wright St, Black was drafted by Milwaukee 33rd overall in 2021. After a left scapula fracture and a broken left thumb limited his time on the field in 2022, he put together numbers that rivaled any player in the Brewers farm system in 2023. With Double-A Biloxi and Triple-A Nashville, Black generated a .284/.417/.513 line, stole a whopping 55 bases and recorded 55 extra-base hits, including 12 triples. Black drew 88 walks in 123 games last season, a major positive sign for success at the next level. A combination of a high on-base rate and good speed has Black garnering a lot of attention. Milwaukee has tried Black out both at first and third base, as they look for the defensive position that best suits him. In this era of baseball, Black's offensive traits are particularly appealing.

Joey Ortiz (No. 63)

Coming to Milwaukee in the Corbin Burnes trade and entering spring training on the 40-man roster, Joey Ortiz is on the verge of becoming an everyday MLB middle infielder. A 4th-round pick by the Orioles in 2019, Ortiz was dominant in college at New Mexico St, where he hit .422 his junior season. Since entering the minor leagues, he has progressed from a .241 average in High-A to a .321 average and 58 RBIs in 88 games last season with Triple-A Norfolk, as well as a .378 OBP. For his efforts last season, Ortiz was named a Baseball America Triple-A All-Star. Ortiz is a high-contact, low strikeout hitter. He strikes out in just 17% of plate appearances, while still displaying high exit velocities. Strong defense and high-contact with power upside makes Ortiz a guy to look out for in the near future.

YOUNG STANDOUTS FROM 2023

The 2023 Brewers season was filled with many exciting rookie moments. Let's take a closer look at four rookie standouts from last season, and what their next steps look like in 2024.

Sal Frelick:

After being named an MILB.com Organization All-Star in 2022, Frelick was called up to the majors for the first time on July 22, 2023. He made an immediate impact, recording five hits, a home run and three RBIs in his first three games. Within a week, he already had two three-hit games, both coming against Atlanta. However, after the hot start in July, Frelick cooled off at the plate. As Major League pitchers began to adjust to his tendencies, hard contact declined for the rookie. Nonetheless, Frelick continued to get on base at a high rate. His OBP of .341 was the most positive sign of his stretch in MLB, and certainly something to build on. In 2024, Frelick will look to become a more consistent hitter, building off his ability to get on base. At spring training, while the outfielder continues to develop at the plate, he is getting some looks playing the infield.

Garrett Mitchell

After success as a September call-up in 2022, hitting .311 in 28 games, Mitchell was on the Opening Day roster in 2023. He got off to a torrid start, with 8 hits and 5 RBIs in his first six starts. In the second series of the season, Mitchell hit a walk-off home run to seal a sweep of the New York Mets, his second home run of the ballgame. Everything looked so promising for the 2020 first-round pick. Then, just two weeks after the walk-off homer, Mitchell was sidelined with a left shoulder injury. This injury kept him out until late September, ruining an opportunity to build off a fast start to his rookie season. Mitchell is now fully healthy entering 2024. After a long absence, the 25-year-old has a chance to make a big impact with a full season to develop. The UCLA product wants to prove that last April was for real, and that he will be a productive outfielder for years to come.

YOUNG STANDOUTS FROM 2023

Brice Turang

Another former Brewers first-round pick, Turang had the chance to play a full rookie season at second base in 2023. It started off with a bang in the Brewers' home opener, as Turang launched a grand slam in a 10-0 win. After a strong start, Turang had a tough time at the plate much of the season, hitting just .218 and striking out 94 times. With a .285 OBP, Turang did find other ways to get on base, but he'll need more consistency at the plate in his second season. Turang made himself very valuable in other areas, however. The 24-year-old stole 26 bases, second on the team to Christian Yelich, and was caught just 4 times. On defense, Turang was excellent, producing 12 defensive runs saved. This was tied for the most of any National League second baseman in 2024. Providing above-average tools in other areas, Turang doesn't need to be an otherworldly hitter to succeed in MLB. An improvement at the plate will make the second baseman a vital asset to this Brewers squad.

Abner Uribe

The right-hander from the Dominican Republic has one of the best fastballs in all of baseball, consistently clocking in over 100 mph. Uribe got his first opportunity with Milwaukee in July, and played a big role during the stretch run for the division title. The 23-year-old was largely excellent, allowing just 6 ER in 30.2 IP (1.76 ERA). He struck out 39 batters in those innings, recorded eight holds, and batters hit just .154 against him. The only problem for Uribe in 2023 was with command, which hurt him in his performances in the Wild Card Series. Uribe walked 20 batters in 30.2 innings, a trend that must be improved as a reliever. With only 60 minor league games of experience, Uribe is still a very raw talent, and more experience should bring noticeable improvement in that department. With a pitch repertoire among the best in the league, Uribe has the potential to become a top-tier reliever in MLB as soon as this year.

IN MEMORIAM

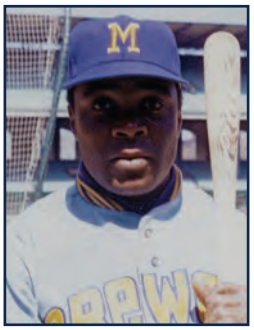
Jim Hannan spent the first nine years of his time in the Major Leagues with the expansion Washington Senators, but finished his 10-year career with the 1971 Milwaukee Brewers. Acquired from Detroit on May 11, Jim appeared in 21 games for the Brewers. He won his lone starting assignment that season against the White Sox on June 28th. Managed by two Hall of Famers in Gil Hodges and Ted Williams, Hannan's best season was 1968, when he posted a 10-6 mark with a 3.01 ERA. As a seven-year old, Hannan and his father attended Jackie Robinson's first professional game at Jersey City's Roosevelt Stadium in April 1946. Jim obtained his Master's degree from New York University and wrote his thesis on MLB's pension plan—its history, administration and vesting requirement. Serving as a member of the Players' Association pension negotiating committee, he helped improve the plan by reducing its vesting requirement. In 1982, Hannan helped found the MLB Players' Alumni Association and served as its first president. In 2009, Jim helped establish the Hall of Fame Classic Legends' game, played annually in Cooperstown. Hannan died on February 8, 2024 at the age of 85.

Bill Voss, who spent the 1971 season and part of 1972 with the Milwaukee Brewers, was drafted by the Chicago White Sox in baseball's first-ever free agent draft in 1964. Voss was traded to the California Angels in 1969 and had his best season, establishing career highs in most offensive categories. Following the 1970 campaign, he was traded to the Brewers in exchange for pitcher Gene Brabender. Bill batted .251 for the 1971 Brew Crew, with a career-high 10 home runs. On June 20, 1972, Milwaukee traded Voss to the eventual World Champion Oakland Athletics. The 1972 season would be his last. Voss died on December 28, 2023. He was 80 years old.

An 18th round selection by the 1969 Seattle Pilots, Wilbur Howard made his Major League debut with the Brewers in September 1973. Wilbur collected his first Major League hit at Yankee Stadium, where he singled off future Brewer Doc Medich. He finished the '73 campaign with a .205 average (8 hits in 39 AB). On March 30, 1974, Howard was traded to Houston for two minor leaguers, one of which was Larry Yount, Robin's older brother. Wilbur spent five seasons with the Astros, with 1975 being his best. That season, Howard batted .283 and had 32 stolen bases. He died on December 1, 2022 at the age of 73 in Humble, Texas.

Although Mike Young appeared in only eight games for the 1988 Brewers without collecting a hit, he was involved in one of the strangest games in team history. In a Sunday, August 29 game against the Tigers at County Stadium, manager Tom Trebelhorn intended to write Robin Yount in his customary third spot in the batting order and Mike Young fifth. Instead, he wrote Yount in both positions. After Young batted, Detroit manager Sparky Anderson protested to the home plate umpire that Young had pinch-hit for Yount, who therefore became ineligible to remain in the game. Despite protests by Trebelhorn, who was ejected from the game, the umpire agreed with Sparky. The Brewers, however, got the last laugh. Jim Adduci, who replaced Yount, contributed a single, double, sacrifice fly, two RBI, and scored two runs in the Brewers' 12-10 victory! Young's best season was in 1985 with the Orioles when he batted .273 with 28 home runs and 81 RBI. On May 28, 1987, he became the fifth player in Major League history to hit two extra-inning home runs, the latter a walk-off shot. Young died on May 28, 2023. He was 63.

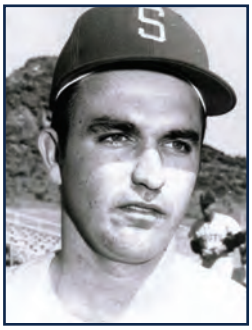
Jeff Peterek, signed by the Brewers as an amateur free agent in June 1985, compiled a 3.46 ERA in five minor league seasons, earning a call-up in 1989. Jeff appeared in seven games for the '89 Brewers, four of them as a starter, posting a 0-2 record with a 4.02 ERA. He played two more seasons in the minors before retiring following the 1991 campaign. Peterek died of natural causes in Niles, Michigan on October 8, 2023, at the age of 60.



Sandy Valdespino, a member of the first Brewers team in 1970, who made just nine plate appearances that season, died on February 26, 2023. He was 84. Valdespino was nicknamed "Sandy" because of his resemblance to fellow Cuban Sandy Amoros, a Brooklyn Dodgers' outfielder in the 1950's. Sandy roomed with future Hall of Fame pitcher Jim Kaat while the pair played for the Class C Missoula Timberjacks in 1958. Valdespino's best season was 1965 with the AL champion Minnesota Twins. Valdespino batted .261 in 108 games and was 3-for-11 in the World Series. He hit a double off another future Hall of Famer, Don Drysdale, to spark a six-run third inning in Game 1, an 8-2 Twins' victory.

IN MEMORIAM

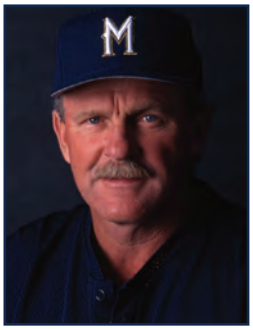
Bobby Bolin was one of a handful of pitchers who excelled in both starting and relief roles. Bolin completed 32 games and saved 51 others during his 13-year Major League career. An original member of the Milwaukee Brewers, Bolin posted a 5-11 record with a 4.91 ERA before his September 1970 trade to the Red Sox. Bolin hit his sixth and final Major League home run on May 11, 1970 at County Stadium, and is the oldest Brewers' pitcher to homer (31 years, three months, and 12 days). The 6-foot, 4-inch fire-balling right hander posted an 88-75 mark with a 3.40 ERA during his career. A member of the 1962 San Francisco Giants' World Series team, Bobby's best season was in 1965 (14-6, 2.76 ERA). Bolin's 1.99 ERA in 1968 was the NL's second best, trailing only Bob Gibson's record-setting mark of 1.12. He died on June 2, 2023 at the age of 84 in Easley, South Carolina.



Wayne Comer delivered a ninth-inning walk-off single to give the Brewers a 6-5 win in the opening game of a Sunday doubleheader on May 10, 1970. The run-scoring single would be the only base hit and RBI that Comer would collect for the Brew Crew, as he was later traded to Washington. Although Wayne had a 13-year professional baseball career, only five were in the Major Leagues. Wayne was a member of the 1968 World Champion Tigers and compiled a perfect 1.000 World Series batting average with a pinch-hit single in Game 3 of the Fall Classic. Comer's best season was with the 1969 Seattle Pilots. He topped the team with 88 runs scored, and led the American League in double plays turned as an outfielder. Comer died on October 4, 2023, at the age of 79.

Frank Howard was a beloved Brewers' coach from 1977-80 and again in 1985 and 1986, mentoring future Hall of Famers Robin Yount and Paul Molitor. Frank played both baseball and basketball at Ohio State University, and was good enough to be drafted by the NBA's Philadelphia Warriors. He chose to sign with the Dodgers instead and in his first professional season with the minor league Green Bay Bluejays, Howard led the league with 37 home runs while batting .333 and driving in 119 runs. He won the 1960 NL Rookie of the Year award and was a member of the 1963 World Champion Dodgers. Traded to Washington following the 1964 campaign, Howard twice led the AL with 44 home runs in both 1968 and 1970 and hit 48 in 1969, while becoming one of the most popular players ever to play in the nation's capital. He was nicknamed "Hondo," "Gentle Giant," and "The Monster." He finished his career with 382 homers. Frank passed away on October 30, 2023. He was 87.

To fans of the 1982 Brewers, the image is as vivid today as it was more than 40 years ago. Pete Ladd on the mound in the deciding game of the ALCS facing future Hall of Famer Rod Carew, two-outs with the tying run at second base. Ladd induced Carew to ground out to shortstop Robin Yount to preserve a 4-3 win and a trip to the World Series! Pandemonium at County Stadium as fans stormed the field! Thrust into the closer's role following a season-ending injury to Rollie Fingers, Ladd notched a pair of saves in the ALCS and followed up with his best season in 1983, notching 25 saves and a 2.55 ERA. Ladd came to Milwaukee following the 1981 season after a stop in Houston. He spent the first part of the 1982 season with the Brewers' Triple A affiliate in Vancouver before joining the Major League team in July. Nicknamed "Big Foot," Ladd appeared in 205 games during his six-year Major League career, 204 of those as a reliever. Ladd died on October 23, 2023, following a short battle with cancer. He was 67.



Bill Campbell, who served as the pitching coach for the 1999 Milwaukee Brewers, died of cancer on January 6, 2023 at the age of 74. A relief pitcher, Campbell posted a 17-5 record with 20 saves for the 1976 Twins. Nicknamed "Soup," after the Campbell Soup Company, he followed this up with a career-high 31 saves for Boston in 1977. Campbell recorded 126 career saves and played with seven teams during his 15-year Major League career, which ended with the Montreal Expos in 1987.

Rob Gardner's eight-year career included a short stint with the 1973 Brewers, for whom he pitched 12.2 innings over 10 appearances. The left-handed journeyman hurled for five other teams besides Milwaukee—Mets, Yankees, Indians, Cubs and Athletics. He posted a career 14-18 mark with a 4.35 ERA. His best season was with the Yankees in 1972 (8-5, 3.06 ERA). In his rookie season with the Mets, Gardner tossed 15 shutout innings against the Phillies on October 2, 1965, as both clubs failed to score. The game eventually ended in a 0-0 tie after 18 innings. Following his retirement from baseball, Rob spent time as a firefighter and paramedic in his hometown of Binghamton, New York. He passed away on October 21, 2023, at the age of 78.

BREWERS IN THE COMMUNITY

Build-A-Bear

Over 100 enthusiastic early childcare students came to American Family Field for an unforgettable experience at the Brewers' team-wide Build-A-Bear event. Under the guidance of players or coaches, each child had the unique opportunity to create their own bear, making it a memorable occasion for all.

Play Ball

All 30 Clubs join Major League Baseball to celebrate Play Ball Weekend. Over 800 youth throughout Wisconsin gathered at Baran Park to participate in Play Ball. The event promotes physical activity, fosters friendships, and encourages youth to play baseball.

BREWERS IN THE COMMUNITY

Kindness in MKE

This weeklong initiative provided an opportunity for players to step off the diamond and into our local communities! From serving food at drive-throughs to covering grocery bills in stores, they brought joy & kindness to our dedicated fanbase.

Boys & Girls Club

The Milwaukee Brewers joined UScellular™ in the unveiling of the new scoreboard at Mary Ryan Boys & Girls Club. Pitcher Devin Williams took the opportunity to share valuable baseball tips with the eager youth and inspire future athletes.

MEET THE BROADCAST TEAM

Bob Uecker

Bob Uecker enters his 54th season as a broadcaster for his hometown team, calling games on Newsradio 620 WTMJ and the Brewers Radio Network. He is celebrating his 68th year in baseball. Known across the country as "Mr. Baseball", Uecker is highly respected throughout the industry. He will forever be recognized in the National Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, New York after earning the prestigious Ford C. Frick award in 2003, which is presented annually to a broadcaster for major contributions to the game. On July 27 that summer, he made one of the most memorable speeches in Hall of Fame history, leaving his audience, including former President George H.W. Bush, in tears from laughter.

In 2001, Uecker was inducted into the Radio Hall of Fame, where he joined baseball broadcasting luminaries Vin Scully, Mel Allen, Red Barber, Ernie Harwell and Jack Brickhouse, as well as other American icons, including Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Edward R. Murrow and Orson Welles. He was later inducted into the National Sportscasters and Sportswriters Association Hall of Fame in 2011 and the National Association of Broadcasters Broadcasting Hall of Fame in 2012.

In honor of Uecker's tenure as a broadcaster for the Brewers, which is the fourth-longest tenure of any broadcaster with one team in the history of Major League Baseball, he is recognized throughout the American Family Field grounds. In 2003, Uecker became a member of the Brewers Walk of Fame, which is located near home plate on the plaza outside American Family Field.

In August 2012, a statue bearing his likeness was dedicated in his honor outside American Family Field, joining those previously dedicated to fellow Hall of Famers Hank Aaron, Robin Yount and Commissioner Emeritus Allan "Bud" Selig.

In April 2014, a second statue was dedicated in Uecker's honor, this one in the last row of the "Uecker Seats" on the Terrace Level at American Family Field. The statue commemorates the Miller Lite commercials in which he famously delivered the often-repeated line, "I must be in the front row!" That year, he was also inducted into the inaugural class of the Brewers Wall of Honor, located along the third-base side at American Family Field.

Uecker has also been recognized locally throughout his career with the Brewers, including earning Wisconsin Sportscaster of the Year honors five times. He was inducted into the Wisconsin Performing Artists Hall of Fame in 1993, the Wisconsin Broadcasters Association Hall of Fame in 1994 and the Wisconsin Sports Hall of Fame in 1998. In January 1995, he earned the Big B.A.T. Award from the Baseball Assistance Team at a dinner in New York City in recognition of his continued support of former Major League players who are in need of assistance.

Prior to becoming the voice of the Brewers in 1971, Uecker spent 1969 and 1970 broadcasting Atlanta Braves games alongside fellow Ford C. Frick award winner Milo Hamilton and Ernie Johnson, Sr.

Uecker's big break can be traced back to a 1969 visit with Al Hirt, a renowned jazz trumpeter from New Orleans. Hirt asked him to come on stage at a small nightclub he opened in Atlanta. Hirt was so impressed with Uecker that he arranged an appearance for him on The Tonight Show, starring Johnny Carson. Uecker became one of Carson's favorite guests, making more than 100 appearances before Carson retired in 1992. He also made appearances on the Mike Douglas Show, The Merv Griffin Show and Late Night with David Letterman, and served as a guest host on Saturday Night Live. Uecker became a national celebrity, and the ABC Network capitalized on his national popularity.

A versatile talent, Uecker's credits go far beyond guest appearances and play-by-play. In 1985, he launched a television acting career as one of the stars of ABC's sitcom Mr. Belvedere, which aired 122 episodes. He also hosted two syndicated television shows, Bob Uecker's Wacky World of Sports and Bob Uecker's War of the Stars.

Despite his national attention and success, Uecker has never forgotten his roots. In 2015, he was honored with the Lombardi Foundation's Award of Excellence for his role in helping raise funds and awareness for cancer research. His philanthrophic efforts have benefited several local organizations, including the United Performing Arts Fund, the Midwest Athletes Against Childhood Cancer Fund, the Milwaukee Symphony, the Boys & Girls Clubs of Greater Milwaukee, Big Brothers/Big Sisters and Wounded Warriors.

In addition, Uecker is an advocate for organizations that battle cystic fibrosis and heart disease, and is involved with the Wisconsin Department of Tourism, the Make-A-Wish Foundation and the ALS Association.

Brian Anderson

Brian Anderson enters his 18th season with the Brewers after being named play-by-play announcer on January 10th, 2007. He is a three-time recipient of the Wisconsin Sportscaster of the Year (2013-14, 2017), which is presented by the National Sports Media Association. Anderson has received five Emmy Awards, most recently in 2020 for Outstanding Crafts Achievement for On-Camera Talent.

In addition to Brewers telecasts, Anderson has called play-by-play for TBS's MLB postseason coverage for the past 16 seasons and will continue to call select national telecasts for MLB on TBS Tuesdays package in 2024. Outside of baseball Anderson has covered a wide variety of events for Warner Brothers Discovery Sports, including the NBA on TNT, NCAA's March Madness, The Match, and the PGA Championship. This past February, Anderson called his second consecutive NBA All-Star Game on TNT.

Bill Schroeder

Bill Schroeder enters his 30th season with the Brewers as a color commentator. He joined the television broadcast team in 1995, following a distinguished playing career as a catcher.

Schroder spent eight seasons (1983-1990) in the majors with the Brewers and California Angels, including a career year in 1987 in which he batted .332 with 42 RBIs and a career high 14 HR. He caught the first no-hitter in franchise history, thrown by Juan Nieves in Baltimore on April 15, 1987. He was traded to the Angels following the 1988 campaign and retired in 1990.

In recognition of Schroeder's long-serving tenure on the broadcast team, he was enshrined on the Brewers Wall of Honor on July 17th, 2015. In the organization's history, only Hall of Famer Bob Uecker has broadcast more games.

Jeff Levering

Jeff Levering enters his fourth season as a play-by-play announcer on Bally Sports Wisconsin and will also continue to be a part of the radio broadcast team. He is in his tenth season as a Brewers broadcaster after joining the organization in January 2015.

Levering was named Wisconsin Sportscaster of the Year in 2023 by the National Sports Media Association, the second time he's won the award. He was also nominated for an Emmy Award in 2022 for Outstanding Crafts Achievement for On-Camera Talent. During each of the past nine years, Levering has served as a play-by-play announcer for college basketball games on Fox Sports and the Big Ten Network, where he also calls college football games.

Levering joined the Brewers after two seasons (2013-14) as the lead broadcaster for the Triple-A Pawtucket Red Sox. He previously spent three seasons each as the radio voice and manager of public relations for the Double-A Springfield Cardinals (2010-12) and as director of broadcasting/media relations for the Class-A Rancho Cucamonga Quakes (2007-2009).

MEET THE BROADCAST TEAM

Lane Grindle

Lane Grindle enters his ninth season with the Brewers after joining the radio broadcast team in February 2016. Along with Jeff Levering, he serves as radio broadcast partner to Hall of Famer Bob Uecker. In the offseason, Grindle handles play-by-play for the Missouri Valley Football Conference on ESPN3 in addition to calling a number of college basketball games on various outlets, including Fox Sports 1.

Grindle joined the Brewers following 10 seasons (2006-2015) behind the microphone for University of Nebraska baseball radio broadcasts on the Husker Sports Network. He spent his first two seasons (2006-07) as the Cornhuskers' pre/postgame host prior to being named play-by-play announcer in 2008. He also held positions as pregame host and sideline announcer for Nebraska football (2007-15) and host of a television show for Nebraska basketball (2008-13).

Sophia Minnaert

Sophia Minnaert enters her 12th season as a sideline reporter for Brewers broadcasts. She is also in her seventh year as broadcast and digital features content director after being named to the position in June 2018. Minnaert was named Wisconsin Sportscaster of the Year in 2022 for the National Sports Media Association, becoming the first woman to win the award. She won an Emmy Award for Outstanding Crafts Achievement for On-Camera Talent in 2018 and was nominated for the same honor in 2019, 2020, and 2021. In the offseason, Minnaert hosts Inside Marquette Basketball with men's basketball coach Shaka Smart.

She previously handled sideline duties for the Milwaukee Bucks and for the WIAA state football championships. Prior to joining Brewers telecasts, Minnaert covered high school state championships for PlayOn! Sports Midwest on Fox Sports Wisconsin, Fox Sports Midwest and CSN Chicago. She was also a feature reporter on Fox Sports Wisconsin's Prep Zone.

Tim Dillard

Tim Dillard enters his fourth season as an analyst on Brewers telecasts on Bally Sports Wisconsin.

Prior to joining Bally Sports Wisconsin, Dillard pitched professionally for 18 seasons (2003-20) with the Brewers (2003-18) and Texas Rangers (2019) organizations before concluding his career with the Milwaukee Milkmen of the Independent American Association (2020). Dillard appeared in 73 games over parts of four seasons in the majors, all with Milwaukee (2008-09, 2011-2012).

His father, Steve, played parts of eight seasons in the majors with the Boston Red Sox, Detroit Tigers, Chicago Cubs and Chicago White Sox.

Vinny Rottino

Vinny Rottino enters his fourth season as an analyst on Bally Sports Wisconsin. Rottino played professionally for 14 seasons (2003-16) in the Brewers (2003-09), Los Angeles Dodgers (2009), Florida Marlins (2010-11, 2015), Cleveland Indians (2012), New York Mets (2012), and Chicago White Sox (2016) systems. He played parts of five Major League seasons with Milwaukee (2006-08), Florida (2011), New York-NL (2012), and Cleveland (2012). He also played for the Orix Buffaloes in the Nippon Professional Baseball League in Japan (2013) and for the Nexen Heroes in the Korea Basketball Organization (2014).

Josh Maurer

Josh Maurer enters his third season with the Brewers after joining the broadcast team in February 2022. He will call road games with Lane Grindle when Jeff Levering is on the television broadcast.

Maurer joined the Brewers after eight seasons (2014-21) as the television and radio voice of the Worcester(formely Pawtucket) Red Sox, the Triple-A affiliate of the Boston Red Sox. He served as play-by-play broadcaster for Double-A Trenton from 2012-13 and Class-A Charleston from 2005-08.

Maurer was also a fill-in television broadcaster for the Philadelphia Phillies on NBC Sports Philadelphia and for the Boston Red Sox on NESN. In addition, he called spring training games for the Red Sox Radio Network from 2016-18.

Craig Coshun

Craig Coshun enters his 24th season on Brewers telecasts as a host of Brewers Live on Bally Sports Wisconsin. Previously a sideline reporter, he has also filled in handling play-by-play duties and cohosting the Brewers Extra Innings postgame show on Newsradio 620 WTMJ.

In addition to his role with the Brewers, Coshun is a host of Bucks live on Milwaukee Bucks telecasts following the baseball season. Coshun and the Bally Sports Wisconsin production team have captured multiple Emmy Awards for their work covering the Brewers and Bucks.

Coshun is a veteran sportscaster in the state, calling WIAA state high school football championships and several events for Fox Sports Network, the University of Wisconsin, the Big Ten Network, and the ESPN family of networks.

Coshun began his television broadcast career in Eau Claire, Wisconsin at NBC affiliate WEAU before landing in Madison, Wisconsin, where he was the sports director at NBC affiliate WMTV until 2000.

Stephen Watson

Stephen Watson enters his third season on Brewers telecasts as a host of Brewers Live on Bally Sports Wisconsin. In the offseason, he serves as a host of Bucks Live on Milwaukee Bucks telecasts. Watson also serves as a co-host of On the Tee, a weekly golf radio show airing on ESPN Milwaukee.

Prior to joining Bally Sports Wisconsin, Watson spent seven years (2014-22) as a sports anchor and reporter at ABC affiliate WISN-TV in Milwaukee. He was named Best Large Market Sports Reporter by the Wisconsin Broadcast Association in 2018, 2019, and 2021 and earned Emmy Awards for Best Sports Feature in 2016, 2019, and 2021. Watson was nominated for an Emmy for Outstanding Crafts Achievement for On-Camera Talent in 2022. He began his career by spending two years (2012-14) as a sports anchor and reporter at NBC affiliate WPTZ-TV in Burlington, Vermont. Watson earned his bachelor's degree in journalism and communications arts from the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 2011.

CELEBRATES 30TH SEASON IN BREWERS' BROADCAST BOOTH

BILL SCHROEDER

BY: JORDY FEE-PLATT

Bill Schroeder is embarking on his 40th season in the Milwaukee Brewers organization, and his 30th as a color commentator. The tremendous relationship between Schroeder and the Brewers almost never began. When Schroeder left Clemson after three seasons in 1979 to pursue pro opportunities, Major League Baseball wasn't even really on his radar.

"In all honesty, I never really thought too much about whether I was going to get drafted or not," Schroeder said. "I was scheduled to go to the Alaskan League, and I was picked to play on the Pan-Am team before the summer started. I was actually getting ready to head to Miami to work out with the USA team."

As he prepared to leave for Miami, Schroeder received a call from the Brewers, and decided to accept their offer. He was taken in the eighth round of the 1979 player draft. Instead of heading down to Florida, Schroeder was off to Butte, Montana for rookie ball.

"It was the beginning of a great partnership with the Brewers," Schroeder said. "I owe the Brewers everything I have, from the time I was drafted until right now. Baseball and the Brewers have provided me just about everything that I have. It's been great."

Schroeder made his MLB debut with Milwaukee in 1983, and played six seasons for the organization. He served primarily as a backup catcher, with his best season coming in 1987, in which he hit .332 with 14 home runs and a .927 OPS. While with the Brewers, he always volunteered to make media appearances.

"The broadcasts would ask if anybody wanted to do tonight's lineup, or a scouting report on your team, and I was always the first one to raise my hand," Schroeder said.

The backstop finished off his career with the California Angels and retired in 1990.

Upon retirement, color commentary was not at all on the horizon for Schroeder. His first order of business was to complete his schooling, so he went to Carroll College in Waukesha to finish his degree. Schroeder worked an internship at an investment company as part of his degree requirements, and was hired as a stockbroker after graduation.

"That was one of the most difficult experiences of my life being an investment guy," Schroeder said.

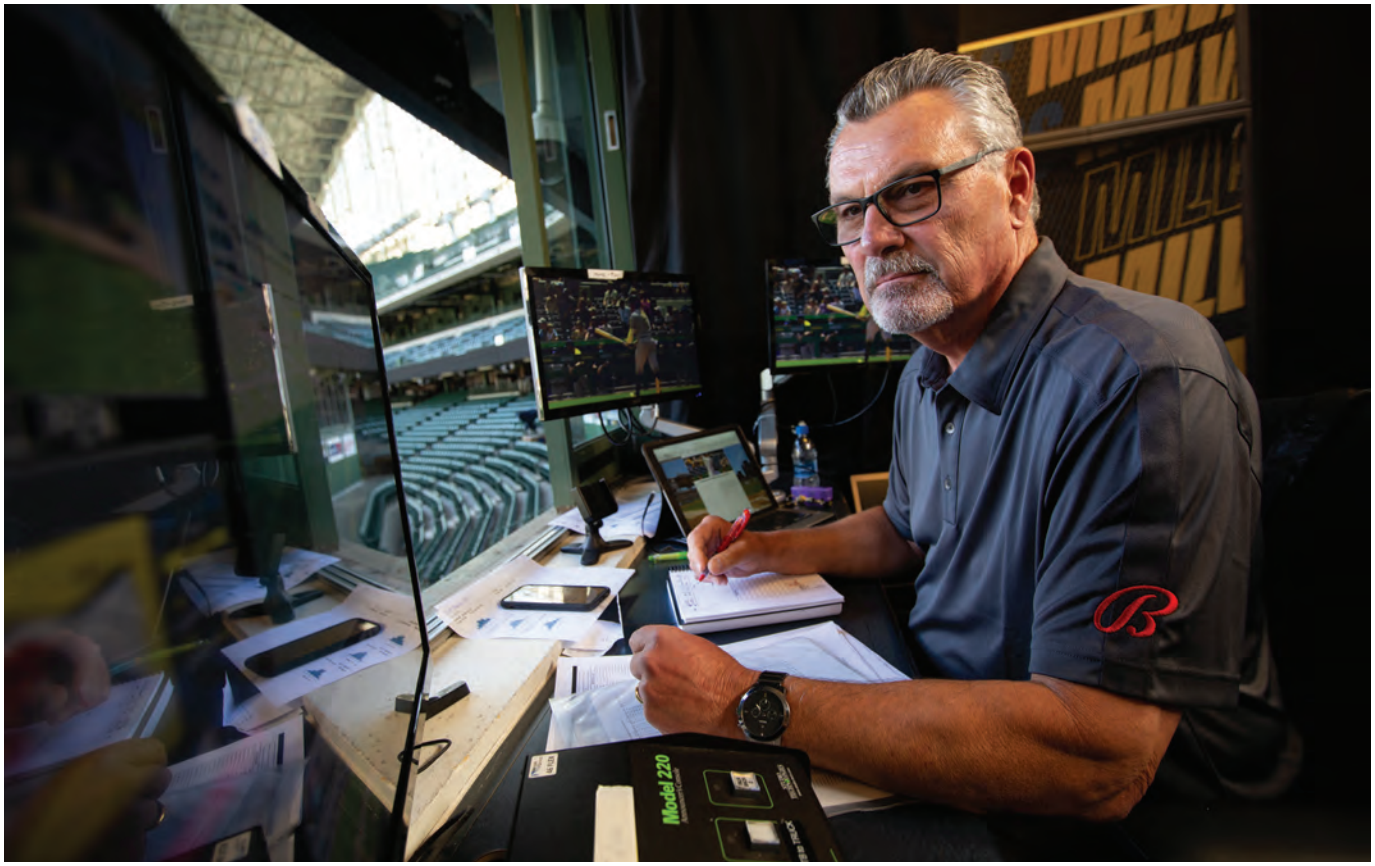
In 1994, Schroeder began his career in sports media, without realizing it could lead to something bigger. Schroeder appeared on the radio for a show called "Baseball Sunday", where the hosts recapped the Brewers games from the past week, and took calls from fans.

Before the 1995 season, Schroeder received a completely unexpected call from Bill Haig, the Brewers vice president of communications.

"Out of the clear blue sky he asked me, 'Would you like to do TV? Would you like to be an analyst?'", Schroeder said. "I was floored. I didn't have any idea I was being considered."

And there began Schroeder's storied career as a color commentator that continues today. It certainly wasn't smooth sailing right away for Schroeder. With the MLB work stoppage, Schroeder arrived for his first spring training in 1995 with replacement players on the field.

"I'm doing games, and there were bartenders, schoolteachers out there," Schroeder said. "That was a difficult thing. People ask me 'are you kind of surprised you've been doing this this long?' And I say I'm not surprised, as much as I'm surprised that the Brewers wanted me after the first year. I had no idea what I was doing," Schroeder said with a chuckle.



BILL SCHROEDER

Schroeder credits his first partner in the booth Jim Paschke for the tremendous early lessons he provided. It was just fine, Paschke told him, to not fill up every second of air time. Letting the game breathe for the viewer was a crucial element of the broadcast. It was also essential, Paschke said, to provide a player's perspective, but in a way in which the public can digest it.

"You don't want to be a baseball player in a broadcast booth. You want to be a broadcaster that used to play," Schroeder said. "Use to the best of your abilities your experiences as a player, whether it be your minor league career or something else, but do it in a way where you're not just talking to former baseball players. You're up there to educate."

In his 29 seasons as a broadcaster, Schroeder has worked with a series of prominent play-by-play announcers, including Paschke, Matt Vasgersian and Brian Anderson. Each announcer has brought his own perspective to the craft, and Schroeder has been able to receive valuable broadcasting wisdom from each of them.

As time went on, Schroeder became increasingly comfortable with the job, and has become a familiar voice for Brewers fans everywhere. The broadcaster has seen the game change dramatically since he began his career in the booth, forcing announcers to adapt.

"Being able to describe action in a succinct way and not ramble on and on is crucial," Schroeder said. "You have to be able to say what you want, and describe what you feel is important in a very quick fashion."

In recent years, the way that player productivity is measured has shifted dramatically. As an announcer, Schroeder has worked to keep his style in line with the new approaches, and is blown away by all the information and technology he has access to.

"The way that organizations are evaluating players and are evaluating success has changed so much," Schroeder said. "It's not just batting average or earned run average. For a guy like me that has been around a while, if you dismiss and discount these new ways of evaluating performance, then you're just letting the game pass you by."

After decades in Milwaukee, Schroeder is overcome with gratitude. He's seen the franchise grow from a dozen or so people running the operation to hundreds of employees. Yet, the foundation has not changed. The organization has allowed him to pursue other passions, including being in charge of the Brewers Fantasy Camps in Arizona, which he has organized for 21 years.

"I still feel like it's home to me," Schroeder said. "The organization hasn't changed at all in my perspective."

Schroeder also emphasized the appreciation he has for his family, particularly his wife Kate, for allowing him to keep up with the busy schedule.

"All the time on the road, the wife and the kids when they were young, it really is a sacrifice by a lot of people to allow me to do what I want to do," Schroeder said. "I'm so grateful to Kate for allowing me to pursue this opportunity."

Schroeder doesn't plan on retiring any time soon, and the strong connections he's built in the Brewers organization and the Milwaukee community are a big reason for that continued appreciation of the job. Early in his career, a conversation with an Old Timer's Association member provided some shrewd advice that has stuck with him all these years.

"If you take care of the people in this town while you're playing, they will take care of you when you're not," Schroeder said. "I never forgot that. I've developed so many fantastic relationships, whether it be fans or restaurateurs or parking lot attendants or guys at the service level at the stadium. I'm so blessed to be a part of this organization."

CRAIG COUNSELL'S RETURN & WORLD CHAMPION RANGERS' FIRST APPEARANCE IN MILWAUKEE SINCE 2019 HIGHLIGHT 2024 HOME SCHEDULE

Former Brewers manager Craig Counsell's return to Milwaukee and the World Champion Texas Rangers' first appearance in the Brew City since 2019 highlight the 2024 home schedule. The new Cubs' manager will return to Milwaukee to face his former team on Memorial Day, the opener of a four-game series. Chicago will make its second and final appearance in Milwaukee for a three-game series during the final weekend in June. Earlier that week, the Texas Rangers, defending World Series champions, will face the Brew Crew in a three-game series. The Rangers will be out to avenge the Brewers' three-game series sweep in Texas last season. The Cleveland Guardians will make their first trip to Milwaukee since 2018 for a mid-August weekend series.

The Brewers longest homestand consists of 10 games from August 9-18, when Milwaukee will host the Reds, Dodgers and Guardians. The team's longest stint on the road is nine games from May 17-26..
